ASKS FOR APPROPRIATION TO FIGHT CATTLE DISEASE

Washington, Dec. 9.—The department of agriculture has appealed to the house committee on agriculture to aid the department in stamping out the foot and mouth disease which has appeared among cattle in New England, asking that an emergency appropriation of $500,000 to $1,000,000 be made.

The committee is advised that there are about 100 herds which in the opinion of the department must be slaughtered. The committee is also advised that it is the opinion of the department officials that the disease was transmitted through hay shipped from abroad.

Secretary Wilson made the appeal in a letter sent to congress today through the secretary of the treasury asking for an emergency appropriation of $1,000,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary to meet the requirements.

Secretary Wilson says:

"About two weeks ago information came to the department that the disease existed in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Vermont and Connecticut. Co-operation of the governors of the states and the state boards having control of contagious diseases of animals has been secured. The effective method of eradicating the disease is to arrange with the local authorities for the destruction of the infected and exposed animals, which together with the disinfection of stables and yards and their quarantine to prevent further spread, is now being done. The disinfection of cars used in transportation of such animals is also necessary. Arrangements have been made and will continue to be made with transportation companies to have all the cars which have been used for carrying animals from infected states thoroughly disinfected. The scourge has not visited this country before for nearly 20 years.

"Quick work is necessary owing to the rapidity with which the disease travels. The product of our domestic animals is over $900,000,000 annually and our exports of animals and animal products amount to a quarter of a billion dollars each year. This scourge costs continental Europe and Asiatic countries enormous sums of money annually. They do not seem to be able to eradicate it. The British people have visitations of it occasionally but promptly stamp it out. We live in the hope that the application of scientific methods eventually will clear the country of all contagious diseases of animals.

"While every effort is making to localize the disease in the infected states there is danger that the cars used in carrying the animals to market may introduce it into other parts of the country. We are ready to send an efficient corps of experts at once to any locality to deal with any outbreak."

PRESIDENT CASTRO IN DEFENSE OF VENEZUELA

He Declares That Great Britain's Claims Have Never Been Presented and Venezuela Consequently Has Never Refused to Settle Them.

By Associated Press.

Caracas, Dec. 9.—President Castro received the correspondent of the Associated Press at Mira Flores palace today. In reply to questions the president of Venezuela said:

"The Venezuelan government has not received any ultimatum, properly speaking, but rather simultaneous requests from Great Britain and Germany. The claims Great Britain asks this government to settle are small and up to the present time we have not been aware of them. Never having been presented, Venezuela has consequently never refused to settle them. Great Britain's action therefore is without justification.

"The Venezuelan government cannot decide on foreign claims before the revolution has been entirely crushed. At present the only aim of the government is the re-establishment of public order, and other questions must necessarily be subservient to this object. Nevertheless to prove Venezuela's desire to settle all pending claims in a conformable manner the government issued a decree during the last session of congress dated November 28 creating a committee to which all pending claims should be referred. No claims have been presented to this committee and no claims have been rejected. There has been no denial of justice; why, then, should foreign chancelleries intervene, thereby ignoring our laws and endeavoring to violate our nations sovereignty? We cannot understand this action."

"What do you intend to do in view of the present attitude of the powers?" was asked.

"Enforce our rights," replied President Castro, "and explain to the world that Venezuela has laws and prove that we have never denied our engagements."

The president was asked what reply the Venezuelan government would make to requests handed it by Germany and Great Britain.

He replied, after reflecting:

"The Venezuelan government is astonished that after the notes which were transmitted to it by the diplomatic representatives of Germany and Great Britain these envoys should leave Caracas without awaiting the reply of the Venezuelan government."

Questioned as to what course he intended to pursue, should the powers declare a blockade, the president excused himself from answering.

No ultimatum had been delivered to the Venezuelan government up to 2 o'clock this afternoon. Should Venezuela refuse or fail to reply to the notes of Great Britain and Germany, it is believed that an ultimatum will then be delivered. This ultimatum would be transmitted by Admiral Glass, commanding the combined Great Britain and German fleets, or by the captain of the British cruiser Retribution.

NOTABLE VICTORY ACHIEVED BY THE WHITE SQUADRON

By Associated Press.

Mayaguez, Dec. 9.—A notable victory was achieved this morning by Admiral Sumner in command of the white squadron with the Iowa, Illinois, Albany and Chicago.

He captured Mayaguez without resistance at 6:24 this morning and immediately mined the harbor. The Nashville and Eagle subsequently entered the channel, and reported that the Atlanta and the San Francisco had last been seen off Ponce, and that perhaps they had been overtaken.

Admiral Sumner's victory was due to the careful execution of his plans. At Trinidad he directed the white squadron to proceed to a point within a circle with a radius of 720 miles, the center of which was latitude 15 and longitude 65. The white squadron was reported to Admiral Higginson, commanding the blue, or opposing squadron at 6 o'clock on the afternoon of December 5. Admiral Sumner's objective was Mayaguez, Guayanilla, Ponce, Ensanda or Culebra.

Under the rules the white squadron would win if it entered the port selected and worked for one hour laying mines before the arrival of a blue squadron double its strength. The white squadron would lose if it was intercepted by a superior force at sea within one hour after having anchored in the port selected.

The white squadron sailed from Trinidad the morning of December 4. The Iowa, Albany, Illinois and Chicago forming an indented column, left the remainder of the squadron and steamed at the rate of 12 knots an hour to latitude 14.40, longitude 57.24, which point they reached at 6 o'clock on the afternoon of December 5. The four vessels then steamed north in line with the islands. The greatest care was exercised to prevent discovery. No lights were shown and only small red and blue flags were used. The flag officers did their night signalling by whistles and shielded lights. There was clear weather throughout the run. An especially careful watch was kept December 7 when the four vessels were due north of Culebra island which Admiral Sumner supposed to be the center of the north and south line of the blue scouts. In order to avoid these scouts Admiral Sumner kept over 200 miles away from the land. On December 8 the Iowa, Albany, Illinois and Chicago ran parallel with the north shore of Puerto Rico until directly north of Mona passage when they turned to the south with the intention of making San Domingo, sneaking along the shore of that island and making a dash across the Mona passage under forced draft to Mayaguez.

When entering the Mona passage at 8 o'clock ... maintaining the squadron stopped for a short time. No blue scouts were sighted until dawn. Then the Olympia, Cincinnati, Detroit and Montgomery were seen. These vessels had been scouting on the north shore of Puerto Rico. It is remarkable that they failed to sight the white squadron especially as the night was clear and there was half a moon until 1 o'clock.

All preparations for mining the harbor had been made when the four vessels of the white squadron dropped their anchors in Mayaguez harbor at 24 minutes past 6 this morning. The last vessel to anchor was the Chicago. Boats were lowered at once and the mining of the channel was finished in 2 minutes. Upon the appearance of the white squadron the Hist discharged green and red signals and attempted to escape. No effort was made to prevent her. The other scouts of the blue squadron fearing capture, hastened away to search for Admiral Higginson. The commander of the blue squadron was last reported at Vieques island where he will be advised of Admiral Sumner's victory.

It is expected that Admiral Sumner will sail tonight for Culebra island where he will transfer his flag. Admiral Dewey will then organize the fleet; Admiral Higginson will have command of the first squadron. All the battle ships will be in the second division which will be under command of Admiral Crowninshield. The second squadron, to include all the cruisers, will be under the command of Admiral Sumner.

SENATE ADOPTED AMENDMENTS TO THE IMMIGRATION LAW

By Associated Press.

Washington, Dec. 9.—The senate devoted most of today to the immigration bill and adopted a number of amendments. There was much discussion of an amendment offered by Mr. Burton of Kansas, to admit Chinese laborers to Hawaii. It was met with much opposition and finally was laid on the table. The provision in the bill prohibiting the sale of liquor in the capitol building caused some criticism of the house for putting it in the bill, but the provision was not stricken out. During the day the militia bill was discussed. It will be taken up again Thursday.

Messages from the president transmitting the papers in the Pius fund case and the report of the governor of Puerto Rico were laid before the senate and then an amendment to the immigration bill by Mr. Hoar of Massachusetts was agreed to providing for the careful inspection of families of aliens who already have been admitted and have filed their preliminary declarations for citizenship. An amendment offered by Mr. Bailey of Texas was adopted providing that skilled labor may be imported if labor of like kind cannot be found in this country.

The amendment prohibiting the sale of liquors in the capitol was taken up and Mr. Berry of Arkansas declared that the capitol was not the proper place to run a saloon.

Mr. Penrose, answering him said the paragraph was stricken out because the committee thought it was not a proper place for it.

Mr. Bailey of Texas contended that each house of congress had authority to act in the matter without any law of congress.

Mr. Tillman said he wanted a little light on the subject. He had been informed that no liquor was sold on the senate end of the capitol.

"The house is simply playing a hypocritical game before the people," said he, "and endeavoring to make the senate attend to its morals."

The committee amendment striking out the section was rejected, which has the effect of retaining in the bill the clause prohibiting the sale of liquor in the capitol. At the instance of Mr. Penrose the senate agreed to a substitute for the 21st section of the bill, extending to two years the time for the deportation of aliens who become a public charge. The section as amended specifies lunacy, idiocy and epilepsy and says that aliens afflicted with either trouble shall be presumed to have been so affected prior to landing in the United States and shall be deported at the expense of the transportation companies bringing them in.

Mr. Burton sought to secure action on his amendment introduced earlier in the day, but Mr. Mitchell, of Oregon, of the committee on Pacific islands and Puerto Rico, interposed an objection on the ground that his committee should consider it. This amendment opened a discussion of the Chinese question.

Mr. Burton declared that the Hawaiians cannot make money because the Japanese have raised the price of labor higher than the traffic will bear and he added that they are not as good citizens as the Chinese.

Mr. Tillman remarked that there may be other parts of the United States that might want labor and he did not see "why we should discriminate in favor of a few corporation pets who own sugar plantations in Hawaii."

Mr. Foraker differed with him and insisted that it was intended to benefit all the people of Hawaii.

Mr. Burton said the Puerto Ricans taken to Hawaii proved failures, but the Portuguese had done very well. White men would not work in the sun in the Hawaiian climate. He thought the Chinese should be allowed to go to Hawaii for agricultural purposes only. He added that he thought such immigrants should be placed under bonds, and in response to Mr. Bacon said he did not consider that such conditions would render the Chinaman a slave.

Mr. Hoar asked Mr. Burton whether he would favor the admission of Chinese to do agricultural labor in the United States. The reply was in the negative.

"Then," said Mr. Hoar, "are you doing to Hawaii as you would do to the United States?"

"Yes," was the reply. "The white man will labor in the mainland, while he will not in Hawaii."

Mr. Bailey made objection to the proposition to invite Chinese to come to Hawaii and then to deport them when they become skilled laborers.

Mr. Burton replied that this view was inspired by the political opinions of the Texas senator. It could not be shown that the Chinaman's fortunes would be rendered worse by the change. On the contrary, he would be distinctly benefited. He would not be bound to come and could remain in his own country if he so desired.

In conclusion Mr. Burton made a plea for the consideration of the amendment at the hands of the committee on immigration, but Mr. Penrose speaking for the committee declined to do so, as, he said, the amendment was premature and also was not germane. He moved that the amendment be laid on the table. The motion prevailed without division.

On motion of Mr. Comas the section of the bill relating to the exclusion of anarchists was amended so as to make it specifically provide for the exclusion of anarchists who advocate the destruction of the government of the United States or of all governments by violence.

While the debate on this motion was in progress Mr. Hoar remarked that there are some governments whose destruction by violence he would accomplish if he could.

The senate then, on motion of Mr. Cullom, went into executive session and at 5:10 p. m. adjourned.

RECORD BREAKING COLD IN NEW YORK AND NEW ENGLAND

By Associated Press.

New York, Dec. 9.—New York and New England have experienced during the past 24 hours the coldest weather for many years. In this city it was the coldest December 9 in 26 years, the thermometer registering 8 above zero. The severity of the cold was intensified by the fact that the people were not prepared for it, the cold wave, having descended upon the country suddenly and without warning. Then, too, the scarcity of coal caused much suffering among the poorer classes. Every effort is being put forth to alleviate the suffering, charitable organizations having taken steps to supply the poor, and the board of aldermen having voted $100,000 to help along the good cause. During the day the rivers were covered with a heavy mist, showing the great difference between the temperature of the air and the water. The cold in the city was mild compared with that prevailing in the northern sections of the state and in New England. At Albany the mercury fell to 10 below zero and in some nearby districts it went down to 20. The river is frozen over at Albany, putting an end to navigation. Ballston reported 32 below, the lowest registration since 1861, and Saratoga felt the grasp of weather 30 below. In the Adirondack region and along the Champlain valley the thermometer registered between 17 and 26 below.

Throughout Maine and Connecticut the thermometer registered from 8 to 20 below, a fall in some places of 4 degrees in 12 hours. Norfolk, Conn., reported a temperature of 23 degrees below zero, the coldest in years.

PENDING BILL OPPOSED BEFORE IMMIGRATION COMMITTEE

By Associated Press.

Washington, Dec. 9.—Former Congressman Barrows of Massachusetts was heard by the committee on immigration today. He said many desirable immigrants would be kept out of the country by the educational test in the pending bill.

Mr. Barrows also took issue against what he called the disposition to make intemperance a crime, saying that this tendency is directed especially against the Italians. But while this disposition existed, he said, it would not be accomplished. He instanced the case of Scotland, saying that notwithstanding there was more intemperance in that country than in any other European country, only 1 per cent. of the Scotch people would be excluded under the terms of this bill. He made an especial plea for the Jewish immigrants, saying that a larger percentage of them than of any other nationality are skilled workmen, but that notwithstanding this fact 18 per cent. of the Jews would be excluded. As a rule no people made better or more patriotic citizens.

General W. W. Dudley, who appeared in behalf of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad, also opposed the pending bill. He said his client was an extensive employer of labor and that it must be remembered that the country wants brawn and muscle as well as brains and that in the past it has been found necessary to secure these from the old country. In the northwest the demand for labor, he said, is greater than the supply. He thought that under the terms of the bill it would be impossible to import common labor, and he was of the opinion that on this account its adoption would be opposed to the best interests of the country. The imposition of the literary test would render it more and more difficult for the company he represents, as well as for others, to carry on the improvements contemplated. Instead of the educational test he would have the emigrant show that he had not been a member of an anarchist society in Europe. We should keep out the dangerous and not the laboring classes.

Ex-Congressman L. E. Payson spoke for the Southern Pacific railroad company which, he said, pays out annually $32,000,000 for labor. His clients were opposed to the educational test. He thought the only qualification that should be required of immigrants should be that of capacity for self-support. If the bill was aimed at anarchy it should be remembered that the assassins of McKinley and Garfield, the inciters of the Haymarket riots also, were men of education. The demand for labor, he argued, is far beyond the capacity of this country to supply. He said he had been advised by the officers of his company that 250,000 common laborers could be absorbed annually. He thought the third section of the bill should be eliminated and that without it the bill would prove to be desirable.

TREATY WITH SPAIN.

By Associated Press.

Washington, Dec. 9.—The senate committee on foreign relations will meet for the purpose of considering a treaty between Spain and the United States which has been negotiated recently and sent to the senate. Since the war of 1898 there has been no treaty between the two countries, the war having operated to annul that in existence. The new treaty is the usual agreement of amity and friendship between countries on good terms with each other and does not differ materially from the old treaty with Spain except that there are not in this, as there were in that, any provisions regarding Spanish frontiers in America. The treaty was negotiated in Spain by Minister Storer.

THIRTEEN YEARS TO PAY BACK RENT BILL

Story of a Widow and Two Sons Who Worked for the Markle [redacted]od of Eviction Which Was Followed by the Death of His Wife.

By Associated Press.

Scranton, Pa., Dec. 9.—Tales of eviction from houses owned by G. B. Markle & Co., the narration of the death of a wife as a result of an enforced removal from her home and the story of a mother whose husband was killed in the Markle mines and of how she and her two boys struggled for years to pay the Markles the back rent and coal bill she owed them were the principal features of today's sessions of the coal strike. The testimony as presented by some of the witnesses whose lives are given up to the coal mining industry was at times pathetic and surprising to the commissioners who listened to it with undivided attention.

The miners this afternoon concluded the calling of witnesses against the Markle company, which concern and the conditions surrounding it have been prominently before the commissioners since last Saturday. In the absence of Samuel Dickinson of Philadelphia and George R. Bedford of Wilkesbarre, attorneys for the Markle company, who are reported to be unavoidably absent, only a perfunctory cross examination has been carried on by J. H. Torrey of Scranton, who is representing another company before the commission and who had been asked to take care of the interests of G. B. Markle & Co. as best he could. Much surprise has been expressed that the company has not made greater efforts to refute some of the seemingly damaging testimony that has been presented. It is expected, however, that the company will do so later. The attorneys for the large coal companies have nothing to say regarding the character of the testimony being presented but those representing the miners are well pleased.

One of the latter, speaking of today's proceedings, said:

"The independent operators in their meeting with the big companies in New York two weeks ago when they succeeded in blocking the proposed settlement said the whole matter should go before the commission so that the country at large would know who is right and thus vindicate the coal companies. We are willing to go ahead with the proceedings if they are satisfied with the 'vindication' they are now getting."

After closing the Markle case the representatives of the miners called witnesses who had formerly been employed in the mines of several of the companies to show that a blacklist existed and that some of the companies had broken the agreement which ended the strike and resulted in the appointment of the arbitration commission. It is the intention of the lawyers of the miners to take tomorrow the conditions of the collieries of the Lehigh Valley company and others in the Hazleton region.

When the strike commission opened its session H. C. Reynolds, one of the attorneys for the independent operators, announced the death of Dr. J. N. Rice, an independent operator who was a party to the arbitration scheme and was prominent in the present negotiations. Chairman Gray, for the commission, expressed sorrow at the death of Dr. Rice.

In a few well-chosen words Judge Gray called the attention to the uncertainty of life and reminded all who are parties to the controversy that they may at any moment be called to that high tribunal, which gives exact justice to all.

The first witness called was James McMonigle, a miner formerly employed by the Markle company. He said the breast he was working in was so dangerous that he complained to the company officials that he might be killed. He was told if he worked any other breast he would not be given any cars. He went out on strike and after the suspension he was refused work and evicted from his house.

B. D. Gallagher, another Markle miner, testified that the company charges him 35 cents a gallon for oil that sells in Hebelton, a few miles away, for 18 cents, and 32 cents a quire for blasting paper that can be had for 15 cents.

Chairman Gray asked what the outside market price for powder was. Some of the independent operators said $1.25 a keg, but attorneys for the miners said 90 to 95 cents. The companies are selling it to the miners at $1.50 a keg.

Andrew Hunnik, a Hungarian, told how the Markles evicted him. He was followed by Henry Coll, another Markle miner, who told how his family, including his mother-in-law, who was 100 years old, were set out on the road with their household goods. He gave a graphic description of how he was injured many times in the mines. He said one of his legs was no better than a wooden one; he had only one eye, his hands had been crushed, ribs broken and skull fractured. The company gave him nothing until after the employes took up a collection for him, then he was given $50, after being on the injured list for two years. The company took out of the collection the rent he owed.

In answer to other question he said that he was one of the 13 evicted by the Markle company. The only rent he owed was for the months during the strike. The company gave no reason for evicting him.

Then followed the most pathetic story yet told the commission. The old miner, decrepit from many injuries, told under examination of how the eviction was carried on. The wife was sick and her 100-year-old mother was blind and unable to walk. The day on which they were thrown out was rainy. He took them best he could to Hazleton, seven miles away, and placed them in a cold, damp empty house. This was last month when the atmosphere on the Hazleton mountain was quite cold. His wife became worse. Medical aid was kindly furnished free by a Hazleton doctor, but it did not help her much. "We were greatly worried because of our having been turned out of the house and one night," he said between sobs, "she died."

"She died" said Judge Gray, who was pacing to and fro across the room, as he quickly turned when he heard the man's last words.

"Yes, sir, she died and I buried her yesterday."

All the commissioners and many of those in the court room were much affected by the old miner's story. The witness went on to say that he did not know whether the centenarian was alive today or not. She was in bad condition owing to her daughter's death when he left the house last night.

No one cared to cross-examine and Judge Gray said:

"That is all, Mr. Coll, and that's enough."

Two more witnesses told of how they were refused work by the Markle company and then J. B. Gallagher, national board member of the United Mine Workers of America for the Hazleton district, took the stand and told of conditions as he found them at the mines of the Markle company. The air in some of the gangways, he said, was so bad that miners' lamps would not burn. If he had a drill hole started and the lamp went out he would work in the dark until his condition became so weakened by the air that he had to go out.

So far as he could remember not one man who was on any of the Markle grievance committees is now working for that company.

Gallagher explained the troubles at the Markle mines after the recent strike was over, when the men refused to go to work because John Markle imposed certain conditions.

National Board Member Gallagher resumed the witness stand at the afternoon session and explained the powder question as best he could, concluding that part of his testimony by saying that the miners employed by the Markle company do not get the 10 per cent. increase because of the peculiar way the company has of figuring the increase in wages agreed upon at the end of the 1900 strike. The witness presented several of his own wage statements which showed that something had been deducted for a priest. When asked what this meant he said he did not know. It was taken off his earnings ever since he went into the mines and he simply dismissed it because he did not object to the assessments.

An 18-year-old Hungarian slate picker employed by the Markles said that before the strike he received 85 cents. Now he received only 75 cents a day. The company never notified him of the reduction and he still does the same work. He said the breaker boss, who stands over the pickers, often clubbed him, kicked him and swore at him for not picking slate faster.

Mrs. Kate Burns of Jeddo was then called to the stand and told a story of how she and her two boys worked 13 years to pay off an accumulated house rent and coal bill due to the Markle company. She was examined by Lawyer Darrow, and in answer to his questions said her husband was an engineer inside the Markle mines. The husband was killed underground, leaving her with four children, the oldest of whom was a boy of eight years. The company never offered her a penny but the employes gave her about $180 to defray the funeral expenses. After her husband had been killed she moved from her four-room house into one containing only two rooms, one room above the other, and for the next six years she struggled as best she could to get along. She took in washing, scrubbed for the neighbors, and once in a while she was given the cleaning of the offices of the Markle company. During these six years, she said, she kept her children at school and when the oldest child was 14 years of age she sent him to the mines to help earn the daily bread. At the end of the first month the lad brought home his wage statement showing that the mother owed $396 for back rent. The boy's wages for the month had been taken off the bill, and he came home empty-handed. She submitted to this and in the course of time her next boy was old enough to help earn a living, and he, too, was sent to the colliery. Like the older brother, the second boy received no pay, his earnings being deducted for rent. The tears of the mother on the witness stand were by this time welling up, and when she added that the money she earned for cleaning the Markle offices was never given her but was kept by the company for rent the commissioners looked at one another in surprise. She said it took the three of them 13 years to make up the debt, the mother's earnings from neighbors being the principal contribution toward the maintenance of the family. The debt was cleared last August. During the six years from the time her husband was killed until the time when the first boy went to work the company never asked her for rent.

This concluded the mine workers' case against G. B. Markle & Co., except that Mr. Darrow read and had placed upon the records of the commission John Markle's statement to President Roosevelt at the time of the now famous conference in the temporary White house.

The attorneys for the miners then consumed the remainder of the afternoon session by presenting 10 witnesses who had been employed by either the Delaware & Hudson company, the Temple Coal & Iron company, or the Erie company, who testified that after the strike they were unable to get back their old employment. This was done to show that the companies were breaking part of the agreement by which the strike was ended and the commission appointed.

On cross-examination it was shown that they had not been re-employed because they had refused to do other work. A carpenter refused to do a laborer's work during the strike; a fire boss declined to be sworn in as a coal and iron policeman, and another fire boss refused to do certain kinds of work. One fire boss applied to several other companies, but they also refused him employment. He did not know why the companies would not give him work unless it was because he refused to become a coal and iron policeman during the 1900 strike. Attorneys for the miners told the commission that this witness was placed on the stand to show that a blacklist exists. Counsel for the operators tried to show that he was too old to go back to the mines.

One of the 10 witnesses, who was employed by the Delaware & Hudson company, admitted that there were too many men at work in the colliery where he asked for reinstatement, but thought the company should have given him work because he had been in their employ for 15 years and always did everything asked of him. He also said he found no complaint with the rate of wages paid by the company.

STAMP OUT THE OUTLAWS.

SEVERAL crimes recently committed in the lower Arkansas valley and a pitched battle between a sheriff's posse and a gang of desperadoes call attention to a danger that should be scrupulously guarded against by the people of this state.

In a mountainous country there is always a better opportunity than on the prairies for the existence of desperate men who, either as individuals or as an organized band, make a practice of violating the laws and who are ready to resist by force any attempt to punish their crimes.

Such persons are a terror to the neighborhoods in which they live, and even when they are not actually engaged in stealing their neighbors' goods they are by their quarrelsome and ugly disposition doing much to destroy the peace and happiness of all those with whom they are connected. And at a suitable opportunity they or their children become bank robbers or train robbers, or burn a house or barn, or kill or maim valuable horses or cattle, as a matter of revenge for some real or fancied slight or injury.

And such crimes frequently escape punishment because it costs too much to trace out and capture the criminal, or because of a mistaken sense of leniency in dealing with him.

It does seem hard that small and poor counties should have to go to such expenses, but as a matter of fact no county can afford to overlook such crimes or fail to make every possible effort to punish them. For if it does, the encouragement thus given to lawlessness is sure to breed much worse evils and to involve the people in more serious losses.

The county should at all hazards stamp out the bad men wherever these are found to exist; and there should be some method by which the assistance of the state could be called into service on such occasions. A well-managed state force of constables and detectives, ready for service at an instant's notice, would be of great value in such cases and would do much to discourage and to prevent crime.

But whether by state aid or purely local effort, outlawry and brigandage ought always to be sternly repressed. The people of Colorado must for their own sake take the high position that every part of this state is as safe to the tourist and the citizen as the most orderly district of any state of the union, and must at all times make and keep it so.

THE CASE OF REED SMOOT.

ANOTHER interesting case involving the relations of the Mormon church, the state of Utah and the United States government is likely to come up soon in the matter of the election of a United States senator from Utah.

The recent state election resulted nominally in a Republican victory, but it is generally understood that the Mormon church controls absolutely the majority of the state legislature and that it will be able to determine the election of whatever candidate for the United States senatorship may be indorsed by it. The acknowledged favorite is a man who bears the very uneuphonious name of Reed Smoot, and who is himself an official in the Mormon church.

It is conceded that if Mr. Smoot is indorsed by the church authorities, he will be elected as senator, but the opponents of his election, including the prominent anti-Mormons and anti-Mormon newspapers of the state, declare that they will not cease their opposition with his election, but will go before the senate of the United States in the effort to secure his rejection by that body.

The reasons upon which they rely to secure this action are most interesting. It is not claimed that Smoot is a practicing polygamist, as was the case with that Roberts, who was debarred from the house of representatives. Nor is it alleged that Mormonism, as a religion and a belief, is sufficient to exclude anyone from a place in the national senate.

But the claim is made that Smoot is not competent to serve as a senator because the Mormon church is established upon the basis of temporal power, and that this organization looks upon the United States government merely as a hostile usurper, to which an unwilling subjection is temporarily enforced, but to which no genuine loyalty is due.

That there is a basis of truth and justice in this claim does not admit of any doubt, but it will be a difficult matter to make it a basis for exclusion from the senate. The American principle is pretty thoroughly established that so long as a man does not openly violate the laws of the land, he has a right to believe about what he pleases. Mr. Roberts was excluded not because he believed in polygamy, but because he practiced it. A man might hold some very extraordinary opinions in regard to the temporal power of the Mormon government and yet be a pretty good American citizen. Some of our Roman Catholic citizens hold theories in regard to the temporal sovereignty of the pope that could hardly be put into practice without serious conflict with their loyalty to the United States government, but no one thinks of calling them into question or of denying them a right to hold public office and to help make our laws on that account.

If Mr. Smoot is the choice of the people of Utah and is ready to take the usual oath to support the Constitution of the United States, it will be a rather difficult matter to shut him out, and while we may sympathize deeply with the anti-Mormon people of Utah in their efforts to encourage the growth of a more truly American and progressive sentiment in that state, we are not at all sure that it would be a wise thing to do. Possibly the Americanization of Utah and the assimilation of the Mormons may be accomplished more rapidly by bringing them into close touch with the general life and sentiment of the American nation than by driving them into isolation and hostile feelings. So long as they do not violate the laws of the land nor engage in open rebellion or plotting against the federal government, they are entitled to a large measure of home rule and full liberty to hold whatever religious or political theories they choose.

Whatever conclusion may be reached by congress the cause is an interesting one, and the developments in the matter will be watched with attention throughout the country.

A FAILURE OF SELF-GOVERNMENT.

AN EDITORIAL in the London Times calls attention to the situation in Venezuela and in one or two other South American states as an illustration of the failure of the experiment of self-government in those countries.

There is a considerable amount of truth in this view, and it is an interesting subject for consideration.

There is an idea generally prevalent that all mankind possesses an inherent capacity for self-government, and this independent of the degree of civilization to which he has attained.

The folly of such an idea ought to be apparent. It is certainly not true that man as an individual is capable in all cases of directing his own affairs. In fact, governments arise because of the inability of a considerable portion of the community to protect their own rights and to perform their own duties, and to adjust in a satisfactory way their relations to their fellow creatures.

And it is even more true that all tribes and races of men do not possess in an equal degree the faculty of organizing governments, nor do all people possess the ability to establish and maintain governments that will secure the fundamental purposes for which they are established.

In the case of the North American colonies of Great Britain, from the experience of which we are apt to draw our ideas on these matters, they possessed the incalculable advantage of a people derived for the most part from a common source, possessing a high degree of intelligence and self-reliance, and experienced in the practice of self-government. Not only that, but it was their happy fortune immediately after their release from the control of the mother country to be welded by the compelling force of circumstances into a great nation which has continued to exist to the present day.

The South American colonies of Spain were not so fortunate. The people were not nearly so unified. The proportion of native "Indians" was much larger. The Europeans were not nearly so advanced in the practice of self-government. The white race did not keep itself separate and distinct from the inferior native races. The various colonies fell apart from each other and their development was along separate lines without regard to any central authority. More than that, the South American states were not, up to within a few years, in the direct line of immigration from the civilized nations of Europe, and their conditions were not such as to make it possible for them to take advantage of the forms of free government which they had adopted.

That the failure of free government in Venezuela and a few other South American republics was not due to any fault in the Spanish race or to a flaw in the theory of free government is attested by the history of such nations as Chile, Argentina, and to a less extent of Brazil. Indeed the case of Brazil is particularly interesting because it offers within its own boundaries such striking contrasts between the prosperity and progress of its more southern provinces and those of the less-favored regions of the north.

And another interesting thing in connection with the Times editorial is its reference to President Roosevelt's message in which he refers to the duty of the stronger nations of the world to establish some kind of international police for the weaker and irresponsible nations. The theory of equal sovereignty, according to which each independent state stands on the same plane as every other one without regard to its size, wealth, degree of civilization or code of politics and morals is a theory that the world has outgrown, and the sooner a frank admission is made of this in international diplomacy, the better it will be for all concerned. Nations like Turkey, China, Roumania, Venezuela and others that might be named do not occupy the same position, nor are they equals with such nations as the United States, Germany, Russia and Great Britain. In dealing with them the rules of ordinary diplomacy, based upon the assumption of the equality of nations and the strict observance of international rules, understood and considered to be binding by all, are entirely insufficient, and the time is certainly coming when a different system will be in force.

ANTHRACITE COAL IN THE FOUNTAIN VALLEY.

COLORADO is a state of such a kind that if anyone tells you that he has found a nine-inch vein of solid gold in alluvial soil, you will, if you are wise, shrug your shoulders and express a polite belief in the statement.

It may be so!

For a similar reason the story of a nine-foot bed of anthracite in the Fountain valley is entitled to consideration.

It is true that well-informed geologists declare that there is no such thing as anthracite coal in Colorado at all, the so-called anthracite being merely lignite of unusual hardness, and that there are no coal-bearing formations in the Fountain valley between Colorado Springs and Pueblo.

But if the nine-foot vein of anthracite has been discovered, evidently the scientists are mistaken.

An interesting case is in progress at Schenectady, N. Y., where an effort is being made to force the Painters' union to reinstate in its membership a man who was expelled from the union because he was a member of the National guard. An injunction commanding the union to consider him as a member is being opposed in the courts, and so prominent a man as ex-Senator David B. Hill has been secured to represent the union in this matter. The case is being watched with interest by the labor unions of the country, although a great many of them do not approve the action of expulsion of a member for this reason.

President Sexton's visit to this city is an omen of good baseball for next season. We are glad to know that we are to have some new umpires, and that the players will be strengthened by some fresh accessions as well as that some of our old friends will be retained. President Sexton suggests that Colorado Springs may stand next year at the head of the list, and to this we will all say, amen.

The cold wave now prevailing through the central and eastern states is rendered more serious and dangerous by the shortage of the coal supply. This is what has been feared since the great strike was at its height. And the worst of it is that such a condition of affairs ought never to have been allowed to exist.

A New York church is to have a theater in the basement, but it is announced that the plays will be largely of a religious character. This is certainly reforming the stage with a vengeance, but the majority both of churchgoers and theater-goers will prefer to have their sermons wholly religious and their theatricals wholly dramatic.

FROM THE PRESS OF THE NATION.

Monroe Doctrine in Re Venezuela.
(Los Angeles Herald.)

Ten formidable British and German warships have their prows pointed toward Venezuela. Two of them would probably suffice to demolish any port in the little republic. This extraordinary display of naval strength is coincident with the appearance, almost within touch, of the most imposing fleet of war vessels that the United States has ever assembled. The senior admiral of the American navy is now on the way to the Caribbean sea, and next Saturday he is expected to be in command of the great fleet. The American vessels are assembled for practice in maneuvers and general naval tactics. This practice has no relation to the status of affairs in Venezuela.

In view of this naval situation at the gateway of Venezuela the developments of the next few days will excite much interest in the United States and in Europe. The purpose of the foreign squadrons is to enforce payment of certain claims against the government of Venezuela. It is intimated that in order to accomplish that purpose the British and German commanders will, of necessity, seize the custom houses at Venezuelan ports. In the event of such feeble defense as might be interposed, it may be assumed that the ports would be bombarded and destroyed.

Just how far the Monroe doctrine might be strained in that contingency is now an interesting question. It is certain, in the first place, that the United States will not stand as sponsor for Venezuela in an attempt to evade payment of just obligations. The president of Venezuela has admitted the justice of part of the foreign claims, and has expressed a willingness to settle on the basis of his understanding of what is right. With that feature of the situation the United States has nothing to do.

The only contingency in which the Monroe doctrine might be invoked would be in the event of prolonged occupation of a Venezuelan port by the foreign powers. That doctrine is to the effect that "any attempt on the part of European powers to extend their system to any portion of this hemisphere would be regarded by the United States as dangerous to our peace and safety, and would be opposed accordingly."

The relations between the United States and the powers in question were never more cordial than they are at the present time, and no danger of rupture over the Venezuelan situation need be apprehended.

Yankees in Canada.
(Brooklyn Times.)

Thirty thousand American settlers on Canadian farms is the record of the last 12 months of the "American invasion." In numbers it is a trifle compared to the horde streaming into the states through New York, but there is this difference. The 30,000 are English-speaking, progressive American citizens, of a class which the country would not lose willingly. It will take generations to produce their type in the foreigners coming in. The emigrant is an American citizen. The immigrant may become one after a generation or so. America is getting the raw material, Canada the finished product.

This record of the last year doubles that of 1901. It is nearly as great as the combined figures for five years, from 1887 to 1891. It represents one-half of the entire immigration of the Dominion. It has still additional significance when it is understood that it affects only seven states to any degree. The American settlers have gone into the Dominion from the Dakotas, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska and Kansas. Next to these states, Illinois has furnished the largest number, but the Dakotas lead. These figures from forthcoming government reports should make satisfactory reading for the Dominion federal officials, who have worked systematically for five years to bring about the conditions which now exist.

Democrats Fight the "Trust" Program.
(New York Press.)

The people of the United States will gain some valuable "pointers" on the Democratic party by watching carefully the attitude of its representatives in congress toward the "trusts" program of President Roosevelt and the Republican legislation enacted to accomplish his purpose of establishing control of the "trusts." The Democratic party has been talking "trusts" now for a decade, but when Republican legislation to establish control of them with amendments to the Sherman law was attempted in the previous congress the representatives there of the Democratic party lined up solidly against it. The only opposition of any appreciable force that will be offered to the anti-trust legislation in this congress will come from the Democrats. And in the next congress!

Let the American people observe two things already noticeable, and as the session advances that will become more noticeable. The lobbies of the house and of the senate, the hotel corridors and the social intercourse territory of Washington are all swarming with the paid agents of the "trusts." What they are able to accomplish in the effort to defeat President Roosevelt's program will amount to little enough, for the Republican majority in congress, fortified by the President's determination and the people's will, are proof against this outside influence and power. What the Democratic party inside of congress may be able to accomplish is of much more concern. It has the lawful authority of votes and the common practice power of obstruction. Watch it exercise both to the fullest possible extent!

It will not be a do-nothing program, thanks to President Roosevelt and to the Republican party. But the Democratic party, trying to pull "trust" chestnuts out of the fire, will do its level best first to prevent a do-something program and then to delay its fulfillment. But both the "trusts" and the Democratic party, proxy for them in congress, will fail!

Among Men of Power.
(Chicago Inter Ocean.)

"Many in New York," says the Inter Ocean's correspondent there, "expected that President Roosevelt would write his message at the top of his voice— that it would be a shriek and an exultation. They have found it a calm, well-reasoned state paper."

The praise which New York's men of power are now giving the president's message rather amusingly recalls the old saying that a prophet is not without honor save in his own country.

For Theodore Roosevelt is New York city born and bred. His whole public career until he became president, save for really brief experiences in Washington and the army, was in the service of New York city and state. If any community has had an opportunity to know Theodore Roosevelt as he is—if any community ought to have known him as he is—it is New York city above all others.

The middle west and the farther west—the men of the nation's heart and its pioneers — have known Roosevelt from the beginning. They have known that he was never a shrieker, never a radical but a typical American, highly progressive, and yet thoroughly conservative in word and deed.

The west knows a man when it sees him. Perhaps the west has that power because it produced, honored, and sent to his mighty tragic destiny Abraham Lincoln—

The kindly-earnest, brave, foreseeing man,
Sagacious, patient, dreading praise, not blame,
New birth of our new soil, the First American.

Whatever may have been the cause of the west's more prompt and accurate discernment, and of New York city's lack of that discernment, the men of power of the financial metropolis are to be congratulated upon at last discovering and knowing as he is their fellow townsman, Theodore Roosevelt.

Protection for the Public.
(New York Press.)

Judge Gray's announcement on the resumption of hearings before the Anthracite Strike commission that a settlement behind the backs of the arbitrators would not entail abandonment of the inquiry is extremely gratifying to the third party to the strike investigation. The chairman says for the commissioners that "parties to the controversy may not withdraw without the consent of the OTHER PARTIES before the commission." Judge Gray's use of the plural is an official recognition that there are three parties at bar—the coal operators, the coal miners and the coal consumers. "We should be glad to have everybody represented and have the whole field covered," says the chairman of President Roosevelt's commission.

The Press takes Judge Gray's statement to mean that the commission not only recognizes the actual presence of the public as the third party to the controversy, but will approve no settlement of the strike to which the public does not agree with the other parties. Moreover, we take it to mean that, the public being without active counsel, the commissioners will protect its interests upon the inquiry and in any agreement that may be reached. The declared desire of the commissioners to proceed with an exhaustive examination of the coal mining business in the interests of the consumers, even if settlement should be made out of court, we take it, may be readily translated into notice to the Coal trust that concessions to the miners will not defeat the purpose of the commissioners to get what the public must have as its share of the settlement—the FACTS as to the cost of coal to the trust and the cost to the consumer.

The express companies at Christmas time every year have had impressed upon them the necessity of doing something to relieve the crush of express matter occasioned by the great quantities of gifts handled. It will be interesting to watch this year the result of the plan they have adopted in uniting to urge customers to ship their Christmas gifts early, thereby insuring more prompt delivery and relieving the crush which has heretofore occurred. They have adopted a unique idea to prevent the recipients from spoiling their little surprise parties, having provided posters with the inscription, "Do not open until Christmas." There is no reason why this plan should not prove effective, for the promise of better delivery will prompt a good many persons to avail themselves of the suggestion. In this connection it might be said that the purchaser of holiday goods can perform his errands with greater satisfaction if the buying is done early than would be possible after the crowds take possession of the various stores and the cream of the goods is skimmed off. The merchants are ready and there is no good reason for not having a longer season of the holiday trade.—(Troy Record.

"The Social Comedy."

118 pages, 9x12, line and half-tone drawings, carefully printed on heavy coated paper, bound in red and gold. Price $2.00. Life Publishing company, New York City.

Life, the weekly illustrated journal, occupies a unique place in the world of literature. It is far more artistic than Punch; it is far cleaner than the French humorous journals, and it deals with live public questions to a much greater extent than Fliegende Blaetter. Among American humorous publications its place is distinct as the representative of refined wit, genial satire and of the laughable and picturesque side of polite society. The something over a hundred full-page pictures gathered into the handsome volume entitled "The Social Comedy," just issued by Life Publishing company, furnish a fair sample of the kind of thing which is most delightful in Life. The pictures deal with the sayings and doings of pretty women and handsome men all stylishly clad and living amid luxurious surroundings. The printing and artistic binding of the book are in keeping with the pictures, and the heavy, coated paper is a delight to the eye and the touch.

"The Social Comedy," as a Christmas gift is handsome enough for any one.

Christmas in Florida.

"Opossums give fine sport to the hunter who goes out with dogs in Florida, says Country Life in America, Christmas Annual. And 'possum, after passing through the hands of old black "mammy" in the kitchen, will surely take the palm over every feathered creature for a Christmas feast. The woods of Florida have deer, too, for the skillful hunter, and if a "boar's head in a lordly dish" is needed to complete the Christmas fare, a forest-bred and acorn-fed "razorback" is no bad substitute for his more dangerous near relative.

Let a railroad man be "rattled," and every life depending on him is in danger. A great many railroad men have found in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery a valuable tonic for the overstrained nervous system. It builds up the body, purifies the blood, nourishes the nerves, and induces a healthy appetite and refreshing sleep.

"I was sick for six years with constipation and indigestion, during which time I employed several physicians, but they could not reach my case," writes Mr. G. Popplewell, of Eureka Springs, Carroll Co., Ark. "I felt that there was no help for me; could not retain food on my stomach; had vertigo and would fall helpless to the floor. Two years ago I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and little 'Pellets,' and I improved from the start. After taking twelve bottles of the 'Discovery' I was able to do light work, and have been improving ever since."

THE CRIPPLE CREEK AND PUEBLO RAILWAY

Chicago and Boston Capital Interested in Project to Build Road From Smelter City to the Gold Camp.

The Cripple Creek & Pueblo Railway company is the name of a new corporation which filed its papers with the county clerk yesterday and which is understood to be ready to begin work on an enterprise which will open the Cripple Creek gold camp to the Pueblo smelters by means of a direct route.

The company is backed largely by eastern capital the control of the company being in Chicago and Boston. The company is capitalized for $2,000,000. W. H. Spurgeon of the law firm of Spurgeon & Cassiday, is the Colorado Springs representative of the new concern and J. M. Parfet of Cripple Creek represents the company's interests in the gold camp. The object of the company is to construct a line of railroad from Cripple Creek to Pueblo by a route which will not exceed 34 miles in length and will reduce the present cost of hauling ores from the district to the smelters in the Smelter city. The road will be operated either by electricity or compressed air according to present plans and will be partly an underground system. Deeds conveying the right of way to the company across the property of the Gold Exploration and Tunnel company and the Geyser Gold Mining and Milling company have been filed with the county clerk of Teller county and it is understood that work on the new road will not be long delayed. The present plans do not include passenger trains but it is probable that passenger traffic will be opened up on the road before the track becomes very old.

The directors of the company are named as follows: T. B. Casey of Boston, president; John R. McKay of Chicago, treasurer; F. W. Hunton, C. C. Chapin, Ernest H. Chapin of Boston, J. T. McAuley of Chicago, C. B. Hubbard of New York; W. H. Spurgeon of Colorado Springs. The incorporators were Ernest Chapin of Boston, W. H. Spurgeon of Colorado Springs, J. M. Parfet of Cripple Creek and J. T. McAuley of Chicago.

Officers Have Invitation to Denver

Major John Booth of the High school cadet battalion has received an invitation from the officers of the Denver High school cadets to be present with his commissioned officers at the tenth annual ball to be given at Kassler hall in Denver on the 23d of this month.

It has been the custom for the officers of the two organizations to exchange invitations on such occasions and heretofore a large number of the local officers have attended the Denver balls and the Denver cadets have come here on several occasions.

Nothing has been done in the way of making arrangements for the local cadet ball but it will probably be taken up in a short time.

These balls are usually held in January or February and are always a source of great pleasure to the young people of the city.

It is the event of the High school year socially and the students are usually present in large numbers. The ball last year was held in the ball room of the Antlers hotel, but previous to that it has nearly always been held in the Temple theater.

Elks Planning for Their Annual Minstrel Show

The local Elks have commenced planning for their annual minstrel show, which will take place in January. M. O. Barnes is chairman of the committee of arrangements and he has commenced his work. The membership in the local lodge contains many who are talented entertainers and they will therefore be able to give a performance that will rank with the best professional burnt-cork exhibitions. The program will be varied with music, dancing and specialties. It is always safe to predict a large audience for the Elks when they try to do something. The decision of the Elks to make their annual entertainment a minstrel show is one that will be generally applauded locally. The matter has been under discussion for some time past but the lodge has had other and important matter on its hands. Now that the club building is assured and the memorial services are over the members can give their whole attention to the coming entertainment. Clint Draper, who is well known as a vaudeville artist himself, is assisting Mr. Barnes in the work of preparation.

Work on Printers' Home

[illegible] Progressing

At the September meeting of the trustees of the Union Printers home, plans were formulated for the expenditure of some $12,000 or $15,000 in the way of improvements and enlargement of that institution. In accordance therewith workmen have been engaged for several weeks upon the interior of the main building. Several of the parlors and larger rooms have been subdivided with partitions into smaller rooms, increasing the capacity of the institution some 25 or 30. The entire interior of the building, which is finished in natural woods, has been revarnished. The plumbing necessitated by the changes was finished yesterday. The workmen are now engaged upon the enlargement of the dining room, which is to be increased in size 14x30 but which will be completed in another week or so. The most costly of the changes will be the erection of an additional story to the hospital annex. The first shipment of four cars of lava stone from Castle Rock is now on the track and the work of delivery on the home grounds commenced yesterday. The work will be pushed to completion as rapidly as the weather will admit.

School Matters Transacted

At the Business Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the board of education was held at the High school building last night. Nothing of any great importance was transacted, the meeting being a very light one.

Prof. Dietrich made his monthly report, which showed the schools of the city to be in a very flourishing condition and the attendance increasing favorably. The usual monthly bills were allowed and the condition of the new buildings and the improvements on the old buildings were discussed. Several changes were ordered in the small school building on the West side which will have to be carried out before it will be accepted by the board. Other routine matters consumed the balance of the session.

All persons suffering from stomach troubles, rheumatism or kidney ailments, ought to go to the Faywood hot springs, New Mexico. See Santa Fe agents.

Heeded Warning to Death

Mrs. Laura McCready, Living in Southwestern Part of the City, Killed by a D. & R. G. Train Yesterday Morning.

Mrs. Laura McCready, a woman 50 years of age, lost her life in the Denver and Rio Grande railway yards yesterday morning while warning her little girl to look out for the train. To warn her child she jumped in front of the train and was mangled to death by the heavy drive wheels of the engine drawing the southbound Missouri Pacific passenger train. The accident occurred at 10:30 yesterday morning at the coal chutes in the south end of the city.

It appears from stories given by those at the scene of the tragedy that Mrs. McCready took her little girl and a neighbor's little girl with her to the tracks to pick up coal around the coal chutes. She was working at the north end of the chute and the little girls were working at the south end. Mrs. McCready, it is supposed, heard the approaching train and not realizing how close it was, jumped into the middle of the track to call to and wave at the little girls. Almost instantly the train struck her and she was caught under the wheels and dragged a little way and then the lifeless body was thrown to one side of the track. A man named Thomas Sheehan, who was walking along the track at the side of the chutes, saw the accident and flagged the train, giving the crew the first intimation that an accident had taken place. The train was backed up and the body was taken to the house near by. It was horribly mangled. Every bone in the chest was broken, the right leg was severed from the body and the scalp was torn from the head.

Coroner Law was notified and took charge of the remains. He notified the dead woman's sons who work in Victor, and last night received a telegram from the eldest son stating that he would come down last night. The coroner has decided not to hold an inquest. Some of the neighbors of Mrs. McCready said yesterday afternoon that two trains were passing the coal chutes at the same time and that Mrs. McCready saw the one coming on the track on which the children were at work and did not see the one approaching her on the other side but this story is not borne out by the children or by Sheehan, the eye witness.

Mrs. McCready leaves four grown sons, all of whom work in Victor, besides her little 9-year-old daughter for whom she gave her life. Her husband is said to be living, but left her some years ago. As it was reported that the family was in destitute circumstances and was compelled to pick up coal from the railroad track to secure a supply to keep the house warm, an officer of the Associated Charities visited the neighborhood yesterday afternoon and learned from the neighbors that Mrs. McCready was not in such poor circumstances and that she did not need to gather coal from the tracks. It was learned that a number of people in that neighborhood are in the habit of picking coal from the tracks when they are not at all compelled to do it. Mrs. McCready had been living at 925 South Conejos street next door to one of her sons who works in Victor, but whose family lives here.

Druggists' Cases Were Filed [illegible]

The case against A. Jae Ward and the A. Jae Ward Drug company and the case against the F. E. Robinson Drug company and Charles D. Zobrist for alleged violations of the liquor law, which were tried in the police court a short time ago, were yesterday filed in the county court on appeal. The druggists were fined $75 and costs in the police court and have taken up the cases to test the constitutionality of the ordinances requiring druggists to keep all liquor 10 feet from their soda fountains.

Mrs. M. N. Stephens yesterday secured a verdict for $2,600 against Malachi Kinney, the broker. The judgment was secured by default, Kinney failing to make an appearance when the case came to trial. The judgment was on suit to recover for mining stocks left in the care of the defendant.

J. V. Sherman was yesterday granted a temporary injunction against R. S. Maunder to restrain him from blocking a right of way across a small piece of property. Judge Cunningham issued the writ. The right of way is a driveway to Sherman's back yard.

Judge Seeds yesterday listened to arguments on the motion for a new trial of the case of Annie L. Farrier vs. the Colorado Springs & Interurban Railway company. Attorney Gardner argued for the plaintiff and Attorney McAllister for the defendant company. The motion was taken under advisement.

Argument was continued before Judge Cunningham yesterday in the case of Johnson vs. Smith to set aside a deed. It is an interesting case and the arguments are long. The case was continued for further argument.

TENT AND AWNING COMPANY MADE ASSIGNMENT YESTERDAY

The Colorado Springs Tent & Awning company made an assignment Monday evening for the benefit of its creditors. Robert Kerr is named as assignee. The assets are placed at $18,000 and the liabilities $9,000. In connection with this assignment the American Tent & Awning company of Pueblo, which is affiliated with the local company, also assigned. It is reported that the assignment was made to protect the creditors and was hastened by threatened suits. It is believed the company will be able to discharge its obligations in full. S. A. McIntyre conducts the local business and he with T. F. Luebbert forms the Pueblo company. It is reported in connection with the assignment that Luebbert has disappeared and an investigation into the affairs of the Pueblo concern is in progress. As far as known there is nothing wrong but various reports are in circulation. Luebbert is well known in this city. About a year ago he secured a divorce from his wife here and has since remarried her in Pueblo.

Any profit resulting from the military ball to be given by them at the Antlers tomorrow night will be applied to this cause. Although a military ball and uniforms will be much in evidence, the attendance of others will be large and everybody is looking forward to a good time. The street car company knows a good thing and will hold its cars until 2 o'clock in the morning.

Yesterday morning quite a crowd gathered at the corner of Pike's Peak avenue and Tejon street. Upon investigating the matter it was found that there was a gentleman discussing as to how he could get to Denver and avoid being arrested, as his mother-in-law was after him, when a several voices were heard that the Colorado & Southern railway ships trains to Denver [illegible] every hour. I [illegible] immediately took the next car for the C. & S. depot, where he boarded the C. & S. train for Denver.

P. S.—Don't forget, the C. & S. offers the best service to Denver and Pueblo. There are others, but "none just as good."

"Mary of Magdala"

AN

Epoch Making Drama

"THE CRISIS" and "THE ETERNAL CITY" BOTH PLEASE

A STARTLING innovation is Paul Heyse's latest play, "Mary of Magdala." Dealing as it does with that almost awesome period of the history of the world when the influence of "the Nazarene" was beginning to be felt, it reintroduces the Roman and Jewish people of that remote period and links the dawning of the Christian religion with the life story of the fallen woman, Mary of Magdala. The fact that the theme is sacred to a large part of the world may affect the viewpoint of the drama, but just persons will see that there is nothing in it which in the slightest degree can be considered sacrilegious. It is undoubtedly a daring feat of the author, and in "Mary of Magdala" the world is given a powerful drama beyond anything which has ever been attempted in an English speaking country. Mary of Magdala is personated by that gifted actress Mrs. Fiske, and that it is in competent hands goes without saying.

At the opening of the play Mary is seen in the midst of the luxury she has obtained as the paramour of Judas of Kerioth. She has begun to tire of her life of shame and to take a more serious view of life. This gives an insight into the heart of this lost creature which prepares one for the scorn with which she receives Judas on his return and her contempt for his recitals of the spell of the "strange preacher" under which he has been living in his absence. From Aulos Flavius, the nephew of Pontius Pilate, Mary learns that "the stranger" daily preaches next to the house of Flavius. She goes to see him and is set upon by the multitude. It seems she will be killed when a man enters hurriedly, saying that "the Master" has sent him with a message. All are instantly awed and, with the trembling sinner, listen to the command, "Let him who is without sin cast the first stone." The spell is instantaneous. The mob skulks off in awful silence, and the terrified sinner fears the new power that in this simple form can awe her persecutors.

The Magdalen's Reform.

From that moment Mary of Magdala is a changed woman. She resolves to alter her life and goes again to hear the preacher, whose look of pity reveals the hideousness of her past to her. She is next seen in the dress of the penitent and meets the derision of the multitude without a word. Her face is enough. Here is Mrs. Fiske's great art—her face. She is most impressive in her silent reformation. In her return from one of these sermons she meets Judas, who is consumed with doubt of the man he loved and followed, who promised so much of aid to his enslaved brethren and who has really yet done nothing, when Judas thought the time ripe for the execution of his plans to overturn the Roman powers and free the Jews, thus checking the uprising against the temple and the government. Judas sees the penitent dress in place of the gorgeous clothes and asks the meaning. Firmly and quietly she tells him that never again will she take up her old life; that she, too, has seen the Nazarene. Beside himself with despair, he seeks to revenge himself on all by his terrible act of betrayal of the new teacher.

In the quiet of her own home once more the penitent is seen. Her sleepless nights and days without food are filled by reading from the teachings of the Nazarene, and peace has settled on her soul. She is interrupted by the entrance of Flavius, who purports to bring Mary a message. He tells her of the sad news she has not yet heard. The Nazarene has been betrayed, is in chains and guarded and will be put to death on the morrow. This horrible information almost drives the poor, hunted creature frantic, and she tries, without result, to learn who has done the horrible deed.

An Awful Alternative.

Here Mrs. Fiske is wonderful, and when a ray of hope is seen in the promise of Flavius to obtain if possible the pardon from his uncle, Pontius Pilate, she falls on her knees and blesses him. From this state of hysterical ecstasy she is horrified to hear that his condition is that she give herself to him. After all her struggle to be good, here she is to face this horrible alternative. She rails against the villainy of man in demanding such a fearful sacrifice. His excuse is his great love and that he knows she is under a glamour which will pass. The struggle, the horror, the contempt, the shame, the hunted look on the face of the artist, Mrs. Fiske—what a world of conflicting emotion! When she sees that the animal can be subdued in but one way, she steels herself to meet his demands when she begins to ponder who the betrayer has been. At this moment the door flies open, and, like a hunted animal, Judas rushes in. In a moment Mary reads the dread confession in his guilty, maddened face. She shrinks from him with horror. The work of Mary and Judas here made a scene long to be remembered by those who saw it. When his demands that she follow him meet refusal, he threatens to kill her. She consents gladly to this ending to her sorrow, but begs for this one night and tells him to come at dawn.

The Voice of "the Master."

As soon as she is alone she hears the knock of Flavius. She prays for some help from her horrible sacrifice, but finally advances to open the door when a wild cry and fearful horror seize her as the floor before her door appears to yawn as a chasm which she cannot cross. While staring in terror at this sight she imagines that she hears the voice of the Nazarene warning her. A wave of unutterable joy illumines her face, and she cries: "Go. I cannot open the door."

It is impossible to describe the effect of this scene or the powerful genius of the star. There are those who hesitate to declare Mrs. Fiske the greatest living English speaking actress. Try any other one in this play, and it will be seen that no one can approach her. Duse is a greater artist, and so may Bernhardt be, but our Duse and Bernhardt in one is now on the Manhattan stage in "Mary of Magdala," and she has the great advantage of a tongue we can understand.

The fifth act introduces the most marvelous scene ever shown on any stage in this country—the storm in a ravine near Calvary. Total darkness everywhere, thunder, lightning, wind, rain in sheets—a fearful, horrible, blinding, wild scene relieved only by the vivid flashes, which intensify the terrors when the fleeing form of Judas, storm beaten and dashing apparently to his death, is fitfully seen with each new flash. There are no words to describe fittingly this wonderful piece of stagecraft and mechanical ingenuity. The mountains at the foot of Calvary, the footpath, the rugged ascent and this poor, miserable, hunted wretch are beyond me to describe.

The Final Scene.

Down the pass come the countless multitude, and the excitement is intense. All are awestricken at the scene just witnessed at the mount of Calvary. The fleeing soul of Judas finds rest in suicide in the garden of Mary's home. Soon the cries and ravings of the woman coming from Calvary are heard. She is forced from the foot of the cross by her friends to save her reason, but when in this crowd she recognizes the high priest Caiaphas she flies at him like a wild person, until the crowd is dispersed to save her life. Then humbly she pleads to wait at the feet of the dead until he redeems his promise to rise from earth. While ascending the path to Calvary the sun shines, and the curtain falls on a grand picture and an epoch in the history of the American stage.

Tyrone Power as Judas did magnificent work, and the company is very strong, with such people as Harry Woodruff as Flavius, James Young as Joab, Max Figman as Jotham, Scott Craven as Haran and Rose Eytinge as Rachel. Judas was a grand second to the Mary of Mrs. Fiske.

"The Eternal City."

Hall Caine's play "The Eternal City" is at the Victoria theater. Viola Allen and a very strong company are convincingly showing us the persons we already know from the novel. The play is very interesting, has some very strong situations and some powerful curtains, but withal it cannot be classed but as a fine melodrama. The mounting is magnificent. The costumes and all which can show lavish expenditure are there, but atmosphere is lacking. Donna Roma of the book has a past, and a not too savory one, but as Viola Allen presents her she is a good woman.

As Donna Roma Volonna Miss Allen is again seen in a role in which she is very good. Viola Allen does not always reach the standard she seems to have set for herself, and as she is an actress with a large following it is disappointing when she fails. Her work in "The Eternal City" is excellent, and the lights and shades are well divided. Miss Allen is rather stagy at times and does not always throw herself into a part as she should to be thoroughly convincing. This fault is in great part overcome in Roma, but occasionally Roma disappears, and Viola Allen is before you. This is especially noticeable in the first scene.

In this play "The Eternal City" she is very winning in tender passages. Miss Allen is ably seconded by Edward Morgan, who plays David Rossi. This role is one of the kind that best suits Morgan, and he plays it well. Frederick De Belleville as the villainous prime minister did magnificent work. I really felt sorry for E. M. Holland. He plays a part in which he is made to tread on the principles of those opposed to seeing the pope put on the stage. He is an able actor, and the absence of applause even in his best moments must have been a source of disappointment.

But, aside from the technical defects and the manifest artificialities which the play undoubtedly possesses, "The Eternal City" is a mighty interesting melodrama and should make a great deal of money.

"The Crisis."

Winston Churchill has succeeded in constructing a charming little romantic play out of his novel "The Crisis." James K. Hackett and a very excellent company are the exploiters of the sweet southern story. Mr. Churchill has given the stage the prettiest and the truest picture of refined southern life that has ever before been accomplished. The atmosphere is perfect and enhances the interest of the charmingly told and well played story. Mr. Hackett was an ideal Stephen Brice. Mr. Hackett has taken on flesh, and it improves his appearance. His dignified manliness against all odds in a section of the country where at the time the feeling against the north was so bitter and at the same time his attitude of determination to stand up for his principles was done to the life. The supporting company, while numbering many unfamiliar names, was of great strength and ably added to the success of the whole. The play is not dramatic, nor is it except in one instance strong. But it is so true, so real and so pretty that it must please and win eventual success.

GRACE W. ELTON.

New York.

DRINA DE WOLFE.

Drina De Wolfe, a comparatively recent accession to the ranks of F. F. Proctor's stock companies, has attracted attention by the painstaking character of her work and seems likely to rapidly forge ahead in her profession.

Miss De Wolfe, besides her talent, is possessed of beauty, youth and vivacity. Born in St. Louis, Mo., she passed several years abroad, and in 1900 she made her first appearance on any stage at a London theater, playing the role of a society girl in "Another Man's Wife." Subsequently the play was toured through the English provinces.

Miss De Wolfe's next engagement was in the support of Mrs. Langtry in "The Degenerates," assuming the role of Lady Stornway. Then followed an appearance in "The Gay Cadets," a musical comedy, in London and Birmingham, after which Miss De Wolfe came to America, making her debut in her native land in "Sky Farm," which enjoyed a long run at the Garrick theater, New York, last season. An offer from Mr. Proctor was then accepted, and she made her first appearance in that manager's stock forces in "Gloriana" at his Fifty-eighth street theater.

She has since played in "The Deacon's Daughter" and "Peaceful Valley" and other plays at the various Proctor houses. Miss De Wolfe is a sister-in-law of Elsie De Wolfe.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

Leona Gillette, the beautiful little actress who will play Becky Thatcher, Huck's sweetheart, in the production of "Huckleberry Finn," has a strong antipathy to high sounding stage names. A short time ago she was endeavoring to fix upon a name she liked for her stage career. She thought of one that struck her as strong and likely to be remembered. When she was engaged to play Becky Thatcher, as she was leaving Mr. Erlanger's office she asked, "What is the name of the part I am to play?" "Becky Thatcher," was the response. Her face fell, and she was somewhat discomforted as she remarked to her sister, Viola Gillette: "There goes my stage name. I had selected Becky Thatcher."

The mayor of San Francisco has approved of the bill permitting the reopening of the Ingleside race track.

Review of Football

Yale Team Wins Eastern Title.. Michigan Leads The West....

By FREDERICK R. TOOMBS

A RETROSPECT of the football season brings into view many interesting and significant facts. In the west and east alike developments are such as to show that the great game is increasing in public favor each year, and despite the deplorable and probably unavoidable fatalities attending contests now and then, the actual participants in matches are multiplying with pleasing rapidity. It is safe to say that were it not for the impossibility of playing in the summer time, thereby materially shortening its season, football would soon take the place of baseball as the national game.

From a financial viewpoint the season just closed has been a record breaker. The increased gate receipts have enabled many organizations to come out of the fray with balances where they formerly had deficits. The attendance and receipts at the game between the University of Michigan and the University of Wisconsin for the championship of the west exceeded all previous records in the west, and prosperity also attended the teams of Illinois, Chicago, Minnesota and Northwestern universities.

Finances of Eastern Teams.

In the east the sky has a particularly roseate hue so far as finances are concerned, and the figures sent me by the treasurers of various university teams are sufficient to convince even the most chronic doubters. The total receipts of the Yale-Princeton game were about $33,000. There are new seating accommodations to be paid for out of this amount, and it is understood that Yale shares the expense for the extra chairs, but of the $33,000 it is estimated that the universities will have $25,000 to split. This game was Princeton's biggest source of revenue for the year.

Princeton had large crowds for the Columbia and Cornell games, and Harvard and Pennsylvania played before audiences of most profitable size. This was particularly true of Harvard, her games with Pennsylvania, the Carlisle Indians, Brown and Dartmouth drawing more than 10,000 persons each. The Harvard-Yale game was the greatest card of the year. Seating accommodations for 38,000 people were prepared at New Haven, and every nook and cranny in the gigantic stands was filled, almost equalling the crowd at the Yale-Harvard game of a year ago at Cambridge, Mass., when more than 30,000 people went through the gates.

Michigan Leads the West.

Of course the best team developed in the west was that of the University of Michigan. Under the guidance of Coach Yost and Captain Weekes the "Michiganders" played a game seldom surpassed in the east and probably never before equaled in the west. It is to be regretted that it cannot be arranged for them to meet the Yale eleven, the champions of the east and undeniably the strongest team in the country today.

Michigan showed the most concerted and powerful attack ever seen in western football in her championship game with Wisconsin. Few people in the immense crowd which saw Michigan sweep aside the Wisconsin forwards in the first ten minutes of play for a steady march to a touchdown nearly eighty yards away knew that they were witnessing the acme of modern attack.

The Michigan team of this year, in fact, was stronger on all around play than the eleven of 1901, which scored 550 points against its opponents without being scored on.

Stagg's Team.

Stagg's University of Chicago team was thought by many to have a chance to defeat Michigan, but the result of heir contest illustrated the tremendous advantage in strength held by the sturdy warriors from Ann Arbor.

The Eastern Leaders.

The eastern teams have finished a very exciting season, with Yale, Harvard and Princeton leading in the order named, although the points separating the last two are very few. Columbia slumped miserably, being decisively defeated by Princeton, University of Pennsylvania, Brown and even Amherst and Syracuse.

Under the guidance of Coach Bill Morley, the captain of last year's Columbia team, it was thought that the blue and white would develop a formidable aggregation, but the material at hand was too poor to ever make a winning team. Captain Harold Weekes was the only man who played in good form, and he was handicapped by a strained ankle.

Pennsylvania was another "big four" possibility of former years that did not "make good," and the position formerly held by the Quakers must be given to Brown, the men from Providence having put up a magnificent fight.

Yale's Strong Rush Line.

Yale's great rush line was the most formidable seen in many a year, with Guards Glass and Hogan and Center Holt as the particular stars. The freshman end, Shevlin, should also be given praise for his brilliant work. In the Yale back field Captain Chadwick carried off first honors. Harvard's back field was a trifle superior to that of Yale and on form made the crimson team superior to Princeton's. Graydon and Captain Kernan are two of the surest ground gainers in the country, and both will have places on the All America team.

Princeton's Stars.

At Princeton the two best men were Captain Davis and "Fat" De Witt, the able lineman who was played at both guard and tackle. The equal of Davis as a defensive player has been seldom found behind the line, and as a ferocious tackler he is unsurpassed.

De Witt has done the best all around work on the gridiron this year. In the line he was a veritable anchor to the whole Tiger team, and his phenomenal goal kicking ability places him easily in the lead among the season's forwards. He is sure of a position on the official All America team of 1902. De Witt is a splendid ground gainer, and a large part of the distance covered by the Princetonians was the result of his line plunging. His performances in the Yale and Cornell games will long be remembered by followers of the orange and black.

OWEN S. KIMBLE, "OLE KAINTUCK."

Kimble is one of the most popular sprinters in the cycling world, and he is to ride in New York's annual six day race, beginning Dec. 8.

Yale and Harvard.

Yale's defeat of Harvard was expected by all pigskin experts in the east. The crimson line was known to be considerably weaker than that of Yale, and Glass, Holt and Hogan easily outplayed the opposing center trio. The disqualification of King, Harvard's strong center, was a severe blow to the crimson.

Is Football Becoming Too Intricate?

Chancellor Day of Syracuse university has come out with a statement concerning modern football in which he says that mass and close formation plays should be removed from the game, and a majority of close students of the game agree with the chancellor's sentiments. Frank Butterworth, the ex-Yale player, who in his time was probably the greatest fullback in the country, was correct when at the beginning of the season just closed he said the game was becoming too intricate and that a return to a more open style of play was advisable.

The bone cracking back of the line formations of the present may be great things to break an opposing line apart, but just as many points were scored and the games were just as exciting in the old days when the four backs were the only men behind the line and the seven forwards played on the line. There can be brawn put into the game without the beef required for smashing formations and skill without the more complicated modes of attack on which latter day football has put a premium.

Every big game played nowadays is chiefly remarkable for its fierceness, whereas speed and dash were attributes more frequently spoken of a few years back.

Games In the Past.

The long passes and the swift dashes in the open that Princeton used against Yale in 1893 are remembered to this day, and that fine game which Princeton won, 6 to 0, stands out in marked contrast to the massing, smashing tactics of today. Then there was Yale's 20 to 10 victory over Princeton in 1895, probably the most spectacular game ever played on an American gridiron. For broken field running, vigorous dashes through the line and uncertainty it has had no equal, and the backs did most of the ground gaining. When the forwards carried the ball, they ran from their positions in the line. There is no prettier play than that of the forward leaving his lining up position, skirting around the quarterback in a short half circle and twisting through an opening in the other wing. The work done by Captain Rodgers of Yale in 1897 was a striking instance of the efficacy of this play.

T. T. Maxfield and Beldia, 2:09 1-2.

That sterling young driver Theodore T. Maxfield of Bloomfield, N. J., again brought himself and his horses prominently before the public during the past season by his performances along the grand circuit. Mr. Maxfield always has a following of astute turfmen that are not dilatory in backing his entries, for he drives to win, and that he is successful above the average his record shows.

Especially with that game trotter Beldia, 2:09½, Mr. Maxfield had gratifying results, and he lowered her record from 2:13¾ to her present mark of 2:09½, thus making her the fastest trotter in New Jersey. He also had the honor of driving to his mark the fastest pacer in the state, Amekin, 2:11¼. The Jerseymen raced Beldia in the grand circuit meets at the Empire City track, near New York city; Lexington, and Memphis, also going to Terre Haute and Cincinnati, where bad weather prevented him from starting. In none of these races was Beldia outside the money. He drove Beldia to her record at Lexington, capturing second money in the race.

In the central New York circuit Mr. Maxfield raced at Syracuse, Fulton, Elmira, Gloversville, Goshen, Kingston, etc., winning several firsts against good fields. At Fulton his followers literally "scalped the bookies" on Beldia's victory. In this circuit also Beldia did not fail to finish inside the money in every race in which she started.

Beldia is owned jointly by Mr. Maxfield and Dr. C. E. Simmons of New York and is trained by the former at his Bloomfield stable, which shelters many other prominent and able campaigners.

MISS GENEVIEVE HECKER, CHAMPION WOMAN GOLFER OF THE UNITED STATES.

Miss Hecker is a remarkable golfer for two reasons—first, because she has won the championship title of the U. S. G. A. two consecutive years, and, secondly, because she never touches a golf stick during the winter. Instead of spending the cold months in the south in order to keep in practice, as do many of her rivals, the fair Norotan (Conn.) champion is content to put aside all thought of playing and wait until spring, when but a few weeks are required to bring her back to premier form. Miss Hecker considers it unwise for any one to golf in the north in cold weather, believing that frozen ground tends to spoil one's stroke.

GREENROOM TOPICS.

Teodora Rush was wanted for Mrs. Osborn's society company in New York, but after considering the offer a few days she decided to await a more favorable opportunity and has been taking things easy for the season.

Michael Morton, an American dramatist, has just finished an English version of Tolstoi's "Resurrection."

Lena Ashwell, the English actor, announces that she will retire from the stage in 1904. She will then be sixty years of age. It is not likely that Mr. Hare will ever play again in America.

Business Manager Archie McKenzie is, as usual, with the Rogers brothers' company.

Miss Minnie Dupree absolutely denies the report that she is going into vaudeville.

An effort is being made in France to induce both of the Coquelins, Mme. Bernhardt and Mme. Rejane to join forces for a tour of the United States next season. If the plan should go through, the price of good seats will be fixed at $5 each.

Some one has just dug up a vaudeville team that by way of its name is worthy of Hoyt. These new aspirants are Fyne and Dandy, eccentric comedians and vocalists. Fyne and Dandy ought to be all the gods if there only could be anything in a name.

When David Frohman opens his new Lyceum theater in New York next season, it is said that he will reorganize his famous Lyceum theater stock company, with a view of having that organization play several months in every season at the home theater when E. H. Sothern is en tour.

Unless Dame Rumor is sadly at fault, Adelina Patti will next season make another "farewell tour" of the United States.

Aubrey Boucicault recently resigned as Henrietta Crosman's leading man in "The Sword of the King" to assume a like position in the new Clyde Fitch play, "The Bird In the Cage," in which Sandol Milliken is featured. Edward Harrigan returns to the stage in an Irish part in this play.

Manager Harry Davis of Pittsburg will be the first stock manager to put on Viola Allen's former success, "In the Palace of the King." He has secured the right to the play from Liebler & Co., together with all of their scenery and costumes, and contemplates giving it a run in the Smoky City.

Frank Westerton, whose melodious voice is now heard, but who is not seen, in the role of the Almighty in "Everyman," has quite a change from his last character, which was that of Lord Quex in Pinero's play.

Miss May Buckley, leading woman of James O'Neill's "The Honor of the Humble" company, recently declined a flattering offer from a London manager, who proposed featuring her in a high class musical comedy about to be produced in the British capital. She says that she intends hereafter to stick to the legitimate in its modern sense, which means that she will play only in romantic, classical or society dramas.

When Amelia Bingham and her company return to New York after their tour in "A Modern Magdalen," she will present there a new play by Clyde Fitch called "The Frisky Mrs. Johnson," in which Fitch will present one of his sensational incidents.

BIENNIAL REPORT OF THE STATE TREASURER

Mr. Chipley Declares That the State Finances Are Now in Splendid Shape and With Economy Every State Warrant and Claim Can Be Redeemed Within the Next Five Years.

Denver Bureau.
Colorado Springs Gazette.

Denver, Dec. 9.—State Treasurer Chipley has submitted his biennial report to the governor. The report is made interesting because of the fact that he deals with the payment of the warrants which caused such commotion at the very beginning of this administration. In speaking of this he says:

"During the first quarter of my term of office I carefully investigated the question of the disbursement of the money turned over to me by my predecessor from the revenue of 1889, the retiring governor having called especial attention to it in his message to the Thirteenth general assembly; a joint committee being by them appointed on the matter, met with me and agreed that the money should be paid out in redemption of such warrants as were found to be legally issued and registered.

"Mr. Calvin E. Reed, for six years assistant attorney general, was requested to meet said committee, and after full discussion of the question, was requested to investigate for them and report to me his conclusions, which I was instructed to follow. His decision being confirmed by the attorney general and other legal advisers to whom I submitted the question, I made the disbursement accordingly. The state saved by that action 3½ per cent. per annum on the amount, or in figures over $3,200 per year, and, while this action caused some criticism at the time, I believed then and do now, that I was acting for the best interests of the state in the redemption of the warrants to which I applied this money.

"I would recommend that the incoming legislature appropriate all surplus moneys from the revenues of 1901 and 1902 to the payment of all outstanding deficiency claims, certificates of indebtedness and warrants of the years 1891, 1892, 1893, 1894 and 1897 respectively. This would only leave the 1887, 1888 and 1889 warrants outstanding and unpaid. My successor will, I think, have a surplus of at least $500,000, which can be appropriated to the payment of those warrants. The state finances are now in splendid shape and, with economy, every state warrant and claim can be redeemed within the next five years. Especially is this true if the inheritance law is sustained, from which source at least a half million dollars will be paid into the treasury."

The treasurer's report states that he received from his predecessor $1,881,716.30. He received from all other sources $4,038,572.65, making a total of $5,920,288.95. There have been $3,833,294.37 expended, leaving a balance of $2,085,994.58 on hand, much of which is invested in school and state bonds. He reports that liquor licenses have amounted to $105,350, while the fees from courts and other licenses amounted to $28,302.66. He reports that there are over 1,500 persons selling liquor in the state who have not paid the state tax. He criticises the local officials in this matter and recommends that something be done to compel the payment of such tax by all parties. He reports that there will be a surplus revenue on hand of about $200,000 at the close of this administration, which, he says, "is a result we may all be proud of." He called attention to the fact that the reduction by the Thirteenth general assembly on the general revenue warrants from 6 per cent. to 4 per cent., and of the capitol building warrants from 6 to 5 per cent., has made an annual saving to the state of about $55,000.

Mitchell, cashier of the Denver National bank, at the corner of Seventeenth and Champa streets, and before they were separated Mitchell had received a number of severe bruises. Ryan was formerly employed at the bank of which Mitchell is cashier, but was discharged and has always claimed that Mitchell was responsible for his having lost his position. He brooded over the matter and today, seeing Mitchell on the street, attacked him. Both men were taken to police station, but later released, Ryan on bond given to appear before the justice court tomorrow morning.

Arguments will be presented and the court will pass upon the merits of the case. In the meantime Aichele will not have to go to jail to serve his time for contempt. It is not thought that a decision will be reached for some time yet to come.

DIVORCE IN NEW COUNTY—Love does not run smoothly in South Arapahoe county, even if it is a new incorporation. This morning a divorce was asked for in that county for Maud D. Jetmore against Nathan Jetmore. This is the first divorce case started in either of the new counties. Mrs. Jetmore asks for the divorce upon the ground that her husband has a habit of beating her.

COAL SHORTAGE—Local coal companies are claiming that a shortage of coal will be on in Denver during the next two or three weeks. All of the dealers report that they have no surplus on hand and that during the cold snap of the first of the week they were barely able to supply the demand.

OVERDOSE OF PAREGORIC—The 10-day-old infant of Dr. and Mrs. F. L. Spalding died at St. Joseph's hospital yesterday afternoon from an overdose of paregoric. The drug is said to have contained enough opium to cause the death. It was administered by one of the nurses, but no one is held responsible for the death of the child, as the physicians who have examined into the case state that only the usual amount was given. They state that it was the usual dose for an infant under the circumstances, but that it proved too strong for the delicate system of the baby.

Want Shorter Hours and More Pay —City Treasurer Asks Advice About Compromise.

Pueblo Bureau
Colorado Springs Gazette.
With the Colorado Securities Co.

Pueblo, Dec. 9.—The linemen of the Pueblo and Suburban Traction and Light company are out on a strike for shorter hours and higher pay. They made a demand yesterday for an eight hour day and $3.50 for it. They told the manager that they would give him until 8 o'clock this morning to decide. He said that he did not need any time to decide and said then and there that he would not accede to their demands. The men out are those who do construction work exclusively. The trades assembly has indorsed the action and has pledged its members not to patronize the company until the demands are complied with.

TAX COMPROMISE—Since the settlement by compromise of the Santa Fe railway taxes for 1901 by the county commissioners County Treasurer McKee has consulted his bondsmen, the United States Fidelity and Guaranty company regarding his giving the railway company a receipt in full on the payment of the amount of compromise which is $23,000. This amount is considerably less than one-half of the Fidelity and Guaranty company, regarding to the assessment. Messrs. McCorkle and Keller, who are the attorneys for the treasurer's bondsmen, are looking the matter up. One of the questions arising is whether the state officers will accept the compromise figure for the state's proportion of the taxes.

Investigation showed him to be nothing more than a drunken cook and he was fined $6 for being drunk.

Avery, superintendent; John F. Bishop, secretary; R. F. Lytle, treasurer, and these, with G. G. Withers, William Barber and L. A. Winters compose the board of directors. The property of this company is located in Custer county and is very promising. It is expected to begin work at once in a substantial way on the Elematah lode, which is situated very close to the Bassick mine.

COAL MINERS DROPPED A BOX OF DYNAMITE

By Associated Press.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Dec. 9.—Four men were killed and 10 injured, three probably fatally, by the explosion of a box of dynamite in No. 5 mine of the Lehigh & Wilkesbarre Coal company at South Wilkesbarre today. The names of the killed are:

ROBERT HUMBLEBEE, carpenter, aged 55, married.
ARTHUR JONES, company hand, aged 28, single.
MATTHEWS PHILLIPS, miner, aged 26, married.
JAMES M'GLYNN, laborer, aged 36, married.

The fatally injured are:
George Knorr.
Charles Stafford.
Thomas Evans.

The most seriously injured are:
Neil Sweeney.
John Rustin.
Dominick Hart.
James Peckeins.

The men had lowered into the shaft, which is 110 feet deep, a box of dynamite weighing 50 pounds. When the bottom of the shaft was reached, Phillips took the box off the carriage. It slipped from his hands and fell to the ground. The concussion exploded the dynamite and the 20 men who were in the immediate vicinity getting their tools in readiness to go to their respective chambers, were hurled in all directions. The wood work at the bottom of the shaft was also torn and scattered about. As soon as possible word was sent to the surface and a rescuing party was sent down.

The mine has the reputation of being the most gaseous in the entire region and at first it was reported that the gas had exploded and that a score of miners had been killed outright. Fortunately, however, the gas did not explode. The accident caused the big colliery to suspend operations for the day.

Pitiful Story of a Swede Who Was Helpless and Without Food—Collins Will Recover.

Victor Bureau
Colorado Springs Gazette.

Victor, Dec. 9.—A pitiful story of sickness and starvation came to light late last night when John A. Kajander, a Finn, was brought to the city and sent to the county hospital later. Kajander was able after some time to relate his story and his appearance verified his statement. He is about 25 years old, and has been employed on one of the district railroads for some time. About three weeks ago, in going to his cabin, which is located about three miles southeast of this city, after his day's work, he was taken seriously ill and next morning was not able to leave his bed. No one living at that time in the immediate vicinity, his cries for help were unavailing. Not a morsel of food of any kind was in his cabin and life was sustained by water of which he happened to have a bucketful. Late last week a family moved into a cabin a short distance from Kajander's. When the noise of unloading the furniture came to his ears, he called to the new neighbors. Then Finn related his desperate condition and was given nourishment. Dr. McKenzie was called the next day, finding Kajander more dead than alive and too weak to remove to the hospital. Late last night he was taken to the county hospital where today he is a great deal better and is regaining strength.

DUMPHY'S CONFESSION—J. W. Dumphy, who was arrested yesterday charged with the embezzlement of $22.50 from the Altman Water company, today made the statement that he had misappropriated the sum of $175 while in the employ of the said company. It was said yesterday that Mr. Dumphy had been arrested more for the purpose of discrediting his testimony in the suit now pending against the Altman Water Co. by the city of Victor than for any other reason, but the statement he made today disposes of that idea.

CLOSE SHAVE FOR GUILSOYLE—A small fight occurred this afternoon at Dupre's barber shop. Tom Guilsoyle of Goldfield, entered the barber shop and commenced to abuse one of the barbers named Clancy, threatening to do him bodily harm. Clancy reached for a gun from a drawer and used it as a club on Guilsoyle's head ... [illegible] ... accidentally discharged and Guilsoyle, running out of the shop, claimed that he had been shot. The only injury he sustained was a gash in the head caused by the blow Clancy struck him with the butt of the gun. Guilsoyle was arrested and locked up, but later was released on bonds.

SUDDEN ILLNESS—Andrew Johnson, a miner working on the Hull City placer mine and residing in this city, was returning home this morning at about 4:30, when suddenly he fell to the sidewalk, apparently dead. He was picked up and carried to his home on First street and doctors summoned. Johnson formerly worked in the smelter at Pueblo and became leaded and last night it is supposed that he got a little bad air in the mine which caused the sickness and the old disease to come back. Tonight he is in a serious condition.

DECISION REVERSED — Word reached here today of a decision by the Colorado court of appeals in the case of the Colorado Trading & Transfer Co. vs. the Bainard Acres Commission company. The chief interest in this case lies in the fact that it was the first ever appealed from the county court in Teller county. The decision of the lower court against the plaintiff was reversed by the upper. The suit was on an account involving $900.

FINGER CUT—J. F. Hore, a miner, had a finger so badly cut in an accident at the Portland mine last night that the services of a surgeon were required to sew up the wound. A lay-off of a few days will be the most serious result.

TRAMMER INJURED—John Williams, a trammer employed on the Goldsworth & Wilhelm lease near Altman, was struck on the head by a piece of falling rock while working in the stope between the fifth and sixth levels. Doctors were called and found the skull badly fractured. Although it was a very close call, Williams will recover.

COLLINS—Al Collins, who was so severely injured by an explosion in the Jo-Dandy last Saturday night, is reported to be getting along nicely and there now begins to be hope that he will recover from his injuries. Collins in a statement to relatives denied that he was warned of the presence of the shot which caused his injuries. At least he says if such warning was given he did not hear it.

REPORTS DENIED.

By Associated Press.

Washington, Dec. 9.—Authoritative denial of the recent reports from Culebra to the effect that the sailors of the North Atlantic squadron were undergoing ... [illegible] in being required to dig a canal under unsanitary conditions, is contained in the following cablegram, received at the navy department today from Admiral Dewey, dated San Juan, P. R., December 8:

"Conditions connected with canal dug at Culebra absolutely sanitary. No sickness whatever among men so employed."

HOUSE KILLED THE LONDON DOCK CHARGES BILL

By Associated Press.

Washington, Dec. 9.—After debating the London dock charges bill for almost four hours the house today chopped its head off by striking out the enacting clause. This killed the bill. The debate was spirited on both sides and all day the members were flooded with telegrams respecting the bill. The withdrawal of the support of the lumber and meat-packing interests which originally had joined with the flour-milling interests in pressing the measure, brought about its defeat. The final vote was 128 to 129 in favor of the motion to strike out the enacting clause. Speeches were made in favor of the bill by Mr. Tawney (Minn.) and Mr. Richardson (Ala), and against it by Messrs. Adamson of Georgia, Wagner, Adams and Dalzell (Pa.), Burleson and Burgess (Texas), and Mann (Ill.).

COMMISSIONERS JAILED.

By Associated Press.

Forsythe, Mont., Dec. 9.—As a result of a further defiance to the orders of Justice of the Peace Roderick McRae, the entire board of county commissioners, together with the clerk, were for the second time thrown into jail for 24 hours and fined $50 each.

The trouble follows the institution of election contests to oust all the candidates who were elected, it is alleged, through the colonization of voters in Rose Bud county. The county commissioners, by resolution, declared the justice's office vacant, and the county clerk, under instructions of the board, refused to produce the docket. The justice committed them.

ON GRACE GREENWOOD

New Leases Are Preparing for Extensive Development---Plant of Machinery Being Installed on the Annie Claim on Gold Hill---Leasing Company to Take Hold of Free Coinage Property.

Special to the Gazette.

Cripple Creek, Dec. 9.—Franklin & Sifton and others of Colorado Springs, who purchased the lease on the Grace Greenwood last week for $5,000, are getting ready to develop the property as fast as possible. Today carpenters were at work in erecting ore bins while another force was working on the blacksmith shops getting ready to sharpen steel for a force of men to sink the shaft. On the surface, the showing these gentlemen have no doubt warrants pushing the work, as it is believed if the ore shoot holds out to a depth of 50 feet, they will take out a small fortune.

The Beltman Leasing company, which has a lease on the same block of ground from the 200-foot point down to the 750-foot level or 100 feet above the level of the Anaconda tunnel, struck yesterday what looks very much like the same ore body which is giving these lessees at the edge of the find values of $25 to $75 to the ton. They expect it to increase as they get further in the ore body. The Beltman Leasing company is working 100 feet above the level of the Anaconda tunnel and will now upraise on the ore shoot which runs on the incline, but from now on, as it is so much easier to upraise on a vein than it is to sink, they will soon reach a point where they will know just what they have. The lessees are now saving a shipment which will go out in the near future.

M. J. McCormick is installing a plant of machinery on the Annie claim on Gold hill. It is being placed over an entirely new shaft on this property, where at 50 feet in depth, there is a fine sized body of ore of a medium grade. It was on the Annie claim that years ago Jennings Bros. agreed to open an ore shoot at surface. People laughed at them at the time, but shortly after they fulfilled their part of the contract.

A. J. Prault, who has spent in the neighborhood of $60,000 in the development of his property on Mineral hill, has suspended operations for a while. "I have not given up," said Mr. Prault, "but I have stopped long enough to get my second wind. Mineral hill is all right and the probability is that I have been expending my energies in the wrong place, but at that I confidently expect to some day open one of the largest mines in the district directly under my old shaft or very near it." Mr. Prault has worked his Mineral hill property for years, but has never asked a cent from local capitalists and he still has the greatest faith in this section that he has put so much time on.

It is learned from a reliable but not an official source that arrangements have been completed whereby a strongly financed leasing company will take hold of the Free Coinage company's property at Altman on or about January 1. This company, it is reported, has secured a 5-year lease on the major portion of the estate. The most important feature of the lease is the condition calling for 300 feet of sinking each year and the work will be prosecuted on either the Pinto or Wilson claims. The former shaft is already 500 feet deep, while the Wilson shaft now reaches the 300-foot point.

Archibald and others, leasing on the E. Porter Gold King are getting excellent values at the present time from the first and second levels. Heretofore this ore has been running around the 3-ounce mark. The lessees working have a lease on the main shaft from which they do all their hoisting.

Stratton's Independence Limited produced during the month of November 8,500 tons of ore with values of an ounce or better to the ton. Today the large pump arrived for this property and will be set on the 1,400-foot level as soon as the pumping station is ready. A large force of men are now working enlarging this station for this monster pump and when it is in place it will throw 1,000 gallons of water per minute. The force of men now employed on this big bonanza reaches nearly the 500 mark.

The Strong Gold Mining company's production for the past month was about the usual average, the company sending out 2,000 tons during the month which gave returns of about $35,000 to the ton. The Strong mine is now looking very prosperous, as there is good ore and an abundance of it on the ninth level, where a great deal of the present production is coming from.

REPUBLIC FREE FROM DEBT

President Frank H. Pettingell Succeeds in His Plan for Redeeming His Properties---Drainage Tunnel Will Cross Republic Ground.

President Frank H. Pettingell of the Republic Gold Mining company announces that the Republic, like its sister company, the Mobile, is completely out of debt. The stock offered the stockholders at 2 cents a share has all been taken up and the debts of the company paid. The time limit for the sale of this stock expires today at noon and it is likely some more subscriptions will come in before that time, in which case the money received over the indebtedness will go toward the formation of a treasury reserve for emergency use. In order to insure the success of this movement Mr. Pettingell subscribed to the allotment of stock to a heavy degree himself. He has been particularly anxious to get his companies out of debt and has now succeeded in doing so.

As soon as the success of the efforts to free the Republic from debt was assured a lease on the property down to a depth of 450 feet was granted to M. Hawkins and J. H. Rudd. This lease is on the Jeanette W. claim on Beacon hill and will run for two years at 20 per cent flat royalty. These lessees have the privilege of operating from the shaft if they so desire. This ground from 450 feet down has been leased to the El Paso company and the drainage committee, this being a claim that will be crossed by the general drainage tunnel. The latter have the first right to the lease but if by any unexpected chance the tunnel should not go through the El Paso company will take the lease and work the ground, as several veins from the El Paso are believed to run into the Jeanette W. This claim has always been considered valuable and the prediction is made that the drainage tunnel will remove sufficient ore from it to materially assist in the expense of driving the tunnel. This latter lease is upon the same terms as the first, two years at 20 per cent. Thus the Republic company is placed out of debt and its ground leased to responsible parties at the same time. H. P. Lelton, who had a lease on the Republic, has forfeited it through non-compliance with its provisions. The drainage tunnel will cut this property at a depth of 400 feet.

Over 20 applications for leases on the property of the Ben Hur company have been received but nothing will be done in regard to leasing this property at present. A lease is about to be granted on the Last Chance claim of the Mobile company to L. W. Terrill. While the papers are not yet signed the matter is considered settled. This lease will also run for two years and the royalty exacted is 20 per cent. The Mobile company was placed out of debt on the same plan as the Republic about a week ago.

BULL HILL CONSOLIDATION DENIED BY ALL CONCERNED

The regular quarterly report of a big Bull hill consolidation has come to hand with due regularity. It is the same old report except that a few more mines are added to the list of those to form the consolidation. The last time the report came around it included only the Pharmacist, Acacia, Empire State and Free Coinage, but this time the Isabella with its enormous acreage is added. The officers of the companies interested have gone through the same old course of denial, one gentleman going so far as to pronounce this particular consolidation one of the impossibilities. Another gentleman, an officer of still another of the companies interested, not only denied the story in toto, but stated that he had a pretty good idea where the report originated and the object the parties had in starting such a story. A gentleman in close touch with the Free Coinage company gave it as his belief that the company would never consolidate with any other property. The owners know the value of the property and have no desire to tie it up with others. There is always enough reason to these reports to enable them to obtain a certain amount of credence. All the properties named are in the same locality on Bull hill and adjoin. In addition the veins from one property dip into another and looking at the matter in that light a consolidation might seem desirable. It is pointed out by those interested, however, that the interests of the companies are not the same in every respect and it would be extremely difficult to complete a consolidation acceptable to all. With the positive denials of men connected with every company interested it is safe to say there will be no consolidation at this time.

LEXINGTON COMPANY GRANTS LEASE ON CLARA D. CLAIM

The Lexington company has just granted a lease on the south 400 feet of the Clara D. claim to Sam McDonald for two years at 35 per cent. flat royalty. The ground embraced in this lease is the same from which Kirk and company produced about $70,000 during the past year. The Lexington company is gradually leasing out its property to responsible lessees. This present lease is the third granted within the last month, the other two being the one to Potvin Bros. on the company's main workings and the other to John Maffee on the Jeff Davis claim. Both these lessees have gone to work and both have a good prospect. The company recently did some little work on its own account and as a result decided to continue the policy of leasing which had been in force previously. Under the Kirk lease the company received substantial returns in royalties. After the expiration of 90 days of the Potvin lease they are required to sink 10 feet a month.

PRODUCTION OF CAMP BIRD FOR MONTH OF OCTOBER

Colorado stockholders in the Camp Bird mine, the famous gold producer of Ouray, have received postal cards from the main office of the company, 43 Threadneedle street, London. The postal contains the following statements regarding the operations of the property for October: The mill ran 31 days, and crushed 5,000 tons of dry ore. There were treated in the cyanide mill, 5,100 tons. Bullion sales, including the product of the cyanide plant (15.0), aggregated $191.40; 340 tons of concentrates brought $87,178, and other cyanide products $4,830, making a total revenue of $285,884. The expenses of operating the mine and development work, including transportation charges and treatment of product, were $93,735.

The net profit of the mine was reported as $180,849. From this should be deducted, explains the report, the expenses of conducting the London office, including the consulting engineer's fees for the month, aggregating £700 sterling, leaving a net profit for the month of £32,304 sterling or about $161,520. The report adds that between the time when the Camp Bird Limited took over the property on October 13, there was expended on construction account $40,000.

MINING NOTES AROUND TOWN

RED ELEPHANT MOUNTAIN SCENE OF ACTIVE OPERATIONS.

The Lawson section of the Georgetown district is about to become one of the most active mining belts of Colorado. Great tunnels will be pushed, from the southern slope, through the base of Red Elephant mountain, one of the very richest spots in the mining states. E. A. Reynolds, the noted Denver capitalist, who has made $20,000,000 in Colorado silver mines, a few months ago purchased the noted Red Elephant group which produced, some years ago, over $4,000,000 within a comparatively short period. On the eastern half of Red Elephant mountain, as viewed from the railroad depot, and adjoining the Red Elephant group, is the vast and rich territory which R. C. Vidler secured about two years ago. Mr. Vidler has great faith in Lawson, and is in no way surprised to see Mr. Reynolds making a gigantic effort to develop the Red Elephant group. Mr. Vidler and associates have formed the East Red Elephant company, which will own and operate the entire territory which Mr. Vidler has been controlling. A great tunnel will be driven through the East Red Elephant company's territory, and it will reach a depth of not quite 2,000 feet as it passes under the apex of Red Elephant mountain, although the length of the tunnel, from its entrance to a point under the apex of the mountain, will scarcely be 4,000 feet. The Red Elephant and East Red Elephant tunnels will intersect many outcropping veins, which may be traced along the slope and near the top of the mountain; and these tunnels will cut, at substantially right angles, the entire vein system which has made Red Elephant mountain famous. The ores of Red Elephant mountain contain gold, copper, lead and silver. The East Red Elephant territory is on the eastern end of the mountain, and extends from the base of the southern slope, over the ridge and down a considerable distance on the northern slope. The Red Elephant group once contained a town of over 1,000 people; but its mines have not been actively operated for over 14 years, although it shipped many train loads of very rich ores, frequently averaging over $300 per ton, at a time when the smelters only paid for the silver in the ores.

BOND AND LEASE GRANTED ON PROPERTY NEAR SALIDA.

S. A. Hughes of Florence, Wm. McMillan of Colorado Springs, and C. R. Peck of Salida, have taken a bond and lease on a group of four claims belonging to Dr. Davidson and W. H. Warwick, the bond price being $25,000, the time running for five years. A cash payment of $1,000 will be made on January 1. Work is to begin not later than February.

The property is located in King's gulch south of Salida about nine miles and in the hills that form the head of the Sangre de Cristo range. The property includes a mill site and ample water and timber. The principal values are in gold with some silver and lead and copper. There is a very large vein which runs from $4 to $10 per ton in gold at depths of less than five feet.

CASINO MINE HAS FOUND LONG LOST ORE SHOOT.

After working for years to find the ore body which was lost and which is known to be exceedingly rich, the Alma Mining company, operating the Casino lode on Seaton mountain, has encountered a streak of ore which it is believed belongs to that which escaped the former manager years ago. Some time ago a body of ore was opened and a test run made which gave returns of $300 net to the ton. The Casino had not been worked for a number of years until a short time ago when the Alma company secured possession of the property. J. J. May, manager of the Alma company at once made arrangements for working the mine through the Foxhall tunnel, his contention being that by so doing he would be able to cut the lode which was lost years ago through the workings of the Silver Queen. Mr. May says the streak is several inches in width, all of which is of smelting grade while alongside there is a good quantity of milling ore.

COPPER MOUNTAIN OFFICERS WERE ABSENT FROM COUNTY

The mandamus proceedings brought by George A. Cockburn et al against President Kinney of the Copper Mountain Gold Mining company to compel him to turn over the books of the company to the plaintiffs were yesterday postponed by Judge Cunningham to December 13. A writ of alias was issued and placed in Sheriff Gilbert's hands to be served upon M. Kinney as president and Miss M. C. Miller as acting secretary of the company to compel their attendance in court. The writ issued last week failed of service and when the case came up it was learned that both were out of the county.

The latest development in the case is one outside of the courts and consists of a proposition from President McKinney to Mr. Cockburn that the meeting called by the latter for December 12 be declared off and another called by them jointly. As the by-laws of the Copper Mountain company require a three-month's notice of a stockholders' meeting it could not then be held until March and the contesting stockholders wish the matter settled at once. Mr. Kinney claims, however, that the meeting called for Friday will not be legal and he also claims that Mr. Cockburn and others who bought in the property do not own it. He also opposes the formation of a new company with a capital stock of $1,500,000 to take the place of the present $1,000,000 corporation, claiming that the stock would have one-third less value.

The Cockburn faction will probably hold the meeting as intended. They claim the sale to Attorney Brady was perfectly legal and his transfer to them equally so. They claim every action taken by them to be in accordance with law.

LIVE OAKS AND ORANGE TREES.

A Few of the Huge Trees Survived the Orange Craze.

Wherever huge live oaks are found, the soil is congenial to the orange tree, and we may be thankful that at the height of the craze for planting orange orchards all over the state of Florida, that some venerable trees were spared. Too often a "two-thousand-dollar live-oak" was ruthlessly hewn down to give place to a "fifty-cent orange tree" —a sordid view of the transaction, perhaps; but no artist will quarrel with the valuation, for he can go to the nearest bank and draw usurious interest all day long and moonlight nights besides, when the ghostly streamers of gray hanging moss hide the prowling night creatures— and one may hear the cry of some bird snatched from its nest by climbing opossum, or the echoing hoots of the great horned owl are answered by mate or rival till the whole wood resounds with their contention.—(Country Life in America, Christmas Annual.

NANCY'S HOUSE PARTY.

A Christmas Episode in the "Misdemeanors of Nancy."

The Man opened the carriage door. Nancy stepped out. A jest was on her lips, but it was never launched; the lips were otherwise engaged. The Man had gathered the young woman into a vigorous embrace, and was kissing her with an enthusiasm that left her no breath for protest. Then he lifted her in his arms, carried her lightly up the steps and set her down on the broad veranda.

"Merry Christmas!" he said, jovially.

For once in her career, Nancy Reynolds was speechless. Words seemed so hopelessly inadequate. The light streaming out from the hall fell upon her bewildered and angry face.

The Man looked down at her, startled, stared, and backed violently away from her.

"Good Lord!" he stammered, in awe-struck tones, "G—good Lord!" Then he added, in a small, hushed voice that quavered: "I thought you were Nell—(From "Nancy's Country House Party" in Country Life in America, Christmas Annual.

COLORADO SPRINGS MINING STOCK EXCHANGE

Colorado Springs, Dec. 9.—The mining stock market this morning was again unsatisfactory. The gains made were all of a fractional order and there were losses to offset what few gains were made. The volume of business was small, only 55,200 shares changing hands. In the mines list Acacia opened the trading with a fractional loss. C. K. and N. opened at the old quotation but quickly advanced to 11¼, under the influence of the dividend. Doctor-Jack Pot was stationary. Elkton opened at yesterday's quotation but dropped back three-quarters of a point. Gold Dollar Cons. and Isabella gained fractionally. Pharmacist opened fractionally higher but dropped back to the old quotation. Portland sold at yesterday's figures, only 200 shares changing hands. Among the preferred prospects Easter Bell and Pappoose gained fractionally and Bob Lee and Little Bess remained stationary. Mobile gained $1 per thousand. In the prospects list Colfax and St. Thomas remained stationary and Zoe gained $1 per thousand.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

Report from Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co., to Otis & Hough.

New York, Dec. 9.—Practically nothing new developed in the general stock market situation and outlook during today's session on which to stimulate a renewal of activity from either a bullish or bearish standpoint. As a result there was very little change in values as a general rule and trading continued on a very small scale and was almost entirely of a professional character. Most of this business merely represented the in and out operations of the trading element in an effort to scalp a profit. London was not a factor and there was no new speculative or investment demand in evidence from outside sources or commission houses. There was a good deal of trading in Sugar and Copper with many bull tips on both. Denver and Colorado Southern were the only other strong features. Their moderate activity and strength was generally attributed to the sentimental influences of the reports now generally current of a reconciliation among the interests recently at war over the contest for control of the Colorado Fuel & Iron. It is generally understood today that a compromise in that contest has been effected, which will leave the present management practically in control of the company. Until there is some relaxation from the present stringent money conditions it is unreasonable to expect any change from the present practical stagnation in the speculation in the stock market and the best we can hope for is a continuance of the prevailing steadiness.

Demand sterling, $4.87¾.

CHICAGO GRAIN & PROVISIONS.

Furnished by Otis & Hough, Bankers and Brokers, 127 Pike's Peak Avenue.

Chicago, Dec. 9.—Wheat—Liverpool ⅛ to ⅝ higher. Paris ¼ to ½ higher. Market active and strong. There was sharp covering by belated December shorts which carried that option up about 3 cents a bushel. There was also considerable covering of May shorts but there was an active trade led by local buying. The little decrease in primary receipts as compared with last year, large exports and a large business for export reported at the seaboard were the principal factors. Our Pacific coast correspondents wire us that the Australian demand for wheat continues there and their markets are strong and advancing. There is nothing new from Argentine. Broomhall reports a little better spot demand in Liverpool. There is unquestionably a strong bullish sentiment here among professional traders. Much will depend on the action of foreign markets in response to the advance here. Estimated cars tomorrow 40.

Corn—Liverpool, ⅛ to ¼ higher. Market was fairly active. There was enough liquidation in December to prevent any change in price, and in fact the trade in that option is only small. Armour was again a large buyer of May corn and that option was active and strong. The weather is unfavorable for movement. The cleaning houses are turning out 60,000 to 70,000 bushels contract corn here every day. The demand for low grade corn both here and in southwest markets is good. We regard the December corn as a dangerous proposition and would have nothing to do with it. Estimated cars 105.

Oats—Market fairly active and strong. There was some covering of December shorts and further good local speculative buying of the May. Receipts and demand fair. Estimated cars 70.

Provisions—Market active and advanced sharply. There was quite an urgent demand to fill January shorts in pretty much the entire list. Strength in corn and wheat was probably what contributed to strength. Receipts 96,000 against 111,000. Quality better than a year ago.

Denver Live Stock.

Denver, Dec. 9.—Cattle—Receipts were only fair this morning, but there was plenty of stock on the market, as considerable left over stuff was on sale. The only cattle that did not sell on this market was the trainload of Montana stock, which went on to the river. The market opened active yesterday afternoon and the scales were kept busy weighing stuff until dark, the result being several hundred head changing hands. Prices on the good grades ruled about steady, but the ordinary stuff showed considerable weakness and was lower in sympathy with a decline at the eastern markets. The general quality of the offerings was fairly good and some of it was choice. The supply of beef steers was light, only a few head selling at $3.60 to $3.80. Fat cows were in better supply and $3.25 was the top price paid. The bulk of the cows sold around $3.00 and were bought by the feeder buyers. The feeder and stocker market was well supplied with stock and the best of the lot consisted of light weight steers that sold at $3.90, freight paid. Steers that had more weight sold at $3.85 flat. The bulk of the bulls sold in the feeder division and brought $1.90. The market is in good condition and the demand strong enough to clean up the yards of all the offerings. The bulk of the stuff on sale will clean up by night.

Hogs—Hog receipts were light and prices were lower in sympathy with a decline at the river. Although all the hogs crossed the scales this morning, only one load is quoted, as prices were not made on the balance, buyers waiting for the closing market. The top hogs sold at $6.15. The demand for hogs is strong and packers are paying river prices for all that come.

Sheep—Sheep receipts were liberal, but no sales made this morning. The bulk of the receipts are going through and one load went direct to the packers. There will be in tonight for this market a trainload of good feeder lambs and breeding ewes that ought to sell here. Another trainload of the same kind will arrive tomorrow. There is a good demand for choice muttons and fair demand for feeders.

World's Fair News Notes.

Colorado's building at the World's fair will undoubtedly be made a permanent structure, and will remain as a monument to the enterprise as well as the resources of the Centennial state.

Joseph H. Linton of Fort Worth, Tex., has invented a flying machine which he intends to enter for the $100,000 prize in the airship tournament at the World's fair, St. Louis, in 1904. His machine is to be built on the aeroplane system, and differs greatly from any machine yet invented.

The advisory committee of the National Educational association on the educational exhibit at the World's fair, St. Louis, contains the following presidents of universities: Nicholas Murray Butler, Columbia university, New York; Wm. R. Harper, Chicago university; Jacob G. Schurman, Cornell university; E. A. Alderman, Tulane university; Andrew S. Draper, University of Illinois; Arthur T. Hadley, Yale university; David S. Jordan, Stanford university.

Many of the larger technical and engineering schools at the exposition will maintain working laboratories in accordance with the motive which will mark the distinction between this exposition and preceding ones, that processes and live exhibits shall be installed rather than products and dead exhibits.

Most of the universities of the East and Middle West have signified their intention of availing themselves of the opportunity afforded by the educational exhibit at the Louisiana Purchase exposition at St. Louis in 1904, to present a resume of their growth and development to the beginning of the twentieth century, and to make thorough departmental exhibits of the universities as they are now organized. Harvard, Yale, Columbia, Chicago and the University of Missouri have already accepted and are making preparations for the exhibit, and Princeton, Cornell and many others are favorably disposed but are awaiting the action of the board of trustees in granting funds before outlining the extent of their exhibit. The exposition will present what has never before been attempted, namely, a systematic arrangement of higher education from the leading universities of this country and abroad.

After considerable correspondence with Colonel J. A. Ockerson, chief of the department of liberal arts of the Louisiana Purchase exposition, Mr. F. Cope Whitehouse of New York city has requested space in the Palace of Liberal Arts on which to exhibit an elaborate relief map of the Appalachian range, to be prepared under his personal direction. The map will include all that part which it is proposed to convert into a forest reserve, in North Carolina, Kentucky, Tennessee, Virginia and West Virginia, and follow the courses of the New and Great Kanawha rivers to Point Pleasant. Mr. Whitehouse intends to give the map to the West Virginia Historical society, believing that if more were known about the New river, and especially the southern part, crossed by the Norfolk and Western railroad, or reached by its extensions, immigration would be encouraged. He also hopes to induce the states of North Carolina and Virginia to co-operate with West Virginia and the government of the United States in controlling the floods which do so much damage in the Great Kanawha.

THE EXPOSITION AT NIGHT.

Henry Rustin Tells of His Plans for Electrical Illumination at the World's Fair.

(By Henry Rustin, Chief Electrical and Mechanical Engineer, Louisiana Purchase Exposition.)

As a finished picture the exposition at night and by day will present totally different views, each demanding approval. The day view will offer a picture of architectural splendor showing detail, color, arrangement and scheme all in true value of light and shade, while the night picture will present itself with lights and shades forged into artificial values. These two views, however, will in no sense be in competition, as each will offer a total picture complete in itself for enjoyment to the eye.

The plan and scope adopted for the Louisiana Purchase exposition by the directors promises, in these words, that its lighting display shall be a feature:

"The progressiveness of the exposition will be most especially manifest in the manner and extent of its use of artificial light, both for purposes of illumination and as a means of decoration.

"Electric lighting in the latest, most striking and most effective form, as well as all other new and efficient modes of illuminating, will be so liberally employed that the exposition grounds and buildings will blaze with light at night, and their beauties successfully rival the attractions of daylight."

The results which can be accomplished by artistic arrangements of lights are numerous, and additional possibilities are created by combining lighting with fountain displays. The vista, as seen from the north end of the main court, will be closed by the cascades in front of Festival hall. Here all efforts will unite for creating a maximum spectacular effect in architectural gardening, fountain display and light.

At night the scene on the main court will be an effect which, for lack of a better term, may be called nocturnal architecture; in that the placing of myriads of points of light in outlining the structures, in face-lighting entire surfaces, or in accentuating prominent architectural features, will produce an appearance in the structures that is entirely different from the daylight scene. This effect, achieved in milder manner at the entrance to the Grand court, will lead with ever increasing intensity up to the main effect at the cascades. The general style of architecture adopted by the exposition presents unusual opportunities for display lighting. The color of the buildings is, in the main, white, and the full value of each lighting unit is reflected.

Much attention is being given the question of supports for lighting about the grounds to prevent their being obtrusive. It is a difficult matter to provide the necessary amount of lighting for walks and avenues without accumulating a forest of lamp posts. Arrangements have been perfected, however, in which it is only necessary to place a few posts at long intervals, and at the same time keep the unit of illuminating of small candlepower.

The scheme adopted leaves the vista almost entirely free from any obstructions to the sight. A certain amount of illumination will be placed on posts about the waterways, in order to take care of the traffic of small boats. These lights, however, will be kept very low.

While decorative illumination will be general throughout the grounds, certain portions will be featured to a greater extent than has been possible at previous expositions. The portions which will receive particular attention will be the avenue leading toward the Government building and the Government building itself. This structure rises to considerable prominence in that it is situated on a high hill. The chief display, however, will be made in front of Festival hall, covering the entire territory known as the cascades. This will be a stroke of artistic architectural and landscape composition something over a thousand feet in width and over 500 feet in depth, and at three different points immense cascades of water will tumble down, making a total plunge of 100 feet.

As arranged, this cascade at night will be saturated with light of varying colors, and the entire surroundings of architecture and foliage will be bathed in the same shades of color as the water effects. This will not be accomplished by means of stage lights or searchlight effects, but will be produced on the structures themselves as if they had each become light giving.

The exposition has provided itself with facilities for the supplying of an immense amount of electrical energy. This will be distributed in the usual manner to the several points of consumption. The major portion of this energy has been apportioned to the producing of a picture in light.

An ample portion of electrical energy has been apportioned for the use of the exhibitor, the concessionaire and for the Foreign and State buildings section. The total of the electrical service so apportioned is considerable, and in variety includes service for every known commercial electrical work, such as charging current for batteries, current for series alternating and direct, current arc lamps, current for all varieties of direct and alternating current motors, service for multiple direct current and alternating current arc lamps. This latter service presents quite a variety of alternating current voltages and frequencies, as well as a good variety of direct current voltages.

Inasmuch as other forms of energy are convertible to electrical energy, it is desired to permit as great a variety of processes and operations among the exhibits as possible. Provision has been made for steam, gas and compressed air service in localities in sufficient quantity to permit the greatest possible display of machinery in motion.

It is predicted that the electrical work at the World's fair of 1904 at St. Louis as a display of lighting and as an exhibit of progress in mechanical and electrical lines, will excel that of any of its predecessors.

"FLORODORA" COMING.

If success means popularity, then "Florodora" is without question the most favored presentation ever seen on the stage, for certainly nothing in the musical comedy line has ever before been accorded the same recognition that this piece has.

Starting its American career in New York city, it ran consecutively there for more than a year and a half to enormous attendance, and last season—its first on the road—was a repetition of crowded houses in every city visited. Naturally a play to meet with such approval, must contain merit of an unusual quality, and that 'Florodora" has such attributes, is evident from the great success that has kept company with it ever since it was first produced in this country. This magnificent organization, with its famous "Pretty Maidens" and its many excellent features, will be seen in this city at the Opera house next Saturday evening and will be sung by an excellent company, including Chas Dox, Corinne, Minnie Falk, Alf C. Wheelan, Willard Curtis, Alfred Cahill, Charles Bowers, Grace Hazard, Frances Tyson and an enormous chorus. A special orchestra of well-trained musicians, carried with the organization, will add to the general fit-out in the rendition of the many beautiful melodies of tuneful and beautiful "Florodora." Reserved seats now on sale. Prices of seats—Parquette $1.50; dress circle, $1.50, balcony, $1.00, gallery, 50c

EUGENE COWLES CONCERT.

Eugene Cowles, the celebrated basso and a fine company, will give a grand concert at the Opera house Thursday evening. Mr Cowles is a grand specimen of American manhood, tall and commanding in appearance, of splendid physique, possessing the most wonderful bass voice ever heard (except Edouard De Reszke) of remarkable range and power, yet sweet as a flute and absolutely true. A man of fine intellect, scholars and musicians are among his truest friends. His manliness is allied to good nature and gentleness. A well known writer in speaking of Mr Cowles describes him in a few words admirably. "He is just splendidly manly." His long association as principal basso with the Bostonians and his more recent success as joint star with Alice Neilson in the "Fortune Teller" and other operas, together as star of his own company, has endeared him to the American public and wherever he sings means testing the capacity of the house. The staid and conservative critics of Europe pronounce him the greatest living basso with one exception.

DAVID WARFIELD.

The attraction at the Opera house next Tuesday will be David Warfield whose hit last season, including a remarkably successful four months at the Bijou theater, New York is fresh in the public mind. When David Belasco, his manager, introduced him into the metropolis last September as the newest among theatrical stars, there were many who predicted success but few who looked for such a complete and overwhelming triumph as greeted his initial appearance in "The Auctioneer." Warfield's work in the character of Simon Levi was declared unanimously by the New York press to be so beautifully artistic and convincing that he deserved comparison with the best actors on the American stage. He ended his New York career in the height of its great success. He played in all in New York 121 performances, during which time the "house full" sign was upon the sidewalk every night, and for most of the matinees. Indeed Warfield's long run was the sensation of the theatrical season along Broadway, and on every side were heard expressions of regret that David Belasco's inability to extend his new star's season there forced him to take the road.

BURTON HOLMES' LECTURES BEGIN TOMORROW.

Mr Burton Holmes, John L Stoddard's successor, will begin his series of illustrated lectures tomorrow evening at Perkins auditorium at 8 15. Mr. Holmes spent last summer in collecting the material for the series he is giving this season, and has been more than usually successful in obtaining photographs for the illustrations of his lectures. His colored moving panoramas are a decided novelty, showing a wide sweep of landscape or an extended view of the cities, in addition to which he took a number of most interesting motion pictures, among which is a typical Portuguese bull fight. These, in addition to over a hundred beautifully colored stereopticon views, will leave a vivid impression in the minds of those who attend the Portugal lecture, at once entertaining and instructive, without being tiresome or soporific.

Tickets are now on sale at Foltz and Hardy's or may be bought at the hall tomorrow evening.

MISS ELLA ZIMMERMAN TO HOLD REGULAR CHINA EXHIBIT

A BREATHING SPELL.

If the consumptive could only keep from getting worse it would be some encouragement.

Scott's Emulsion at least gives tired nature a breathing spell. The nourishment and strength obtained from Scott's Emulsion are a great relief to the exhausted system.

This treatment alone often enables the consumptive to gather force enough to throw off the disease altogether.

Scott's Emulsion brings strength to the lungs and flesh to the body.

WRONG ATTRACTION.

"No," said the theatrical manager, not unkindly; "No, you will not do for the chorus."

"But why?" sighed the fair young thing. "I have a highly developed voice."

"My dear young lady," was the gentle response of the manager; "people do not go to the comic opera nowadays to see the graceful rise and fall of the Adam's apple. I regret to state that our ar. demands more limbs than larynxes."

A COY ADMISSION.

"I always feel so afraid," said the doting mamma, "when I see Herbert going on the football field. I fear that in some of the tackling and rough scrimmages, he may have an arm torn loose from his body, or something like that."

"Oh! I would not be alarmed," answered Herbert's sweetheart, who had accompanied the party to the game. "Herbert's arms are very strong."

And then her blushes were painful to contemplate.

Raised His Own Bid and Then Wanted ...

An auction was being held last night at a well known store situated on one of the principal streets of the city. The auctioneer had been working hard in an effort to produce buyers from among the members of the open-mouthed throng crowded about his stand. Wiping the perspiration from his brow he held aloft a gentlemen's toilet set, silver mounted and marked at a price reaching nearly $50. The thing was a beauty and was started out at $8 by a lady in the crowd and for a short time the bidding was brisk in small sums. Over in one corner was a gentleman slightly hidden from the rest, who had just recently "looked upon the wine when it was red," and the gaze that he had bestowed upon the wine had not in any way improved his mental facilities.

So when the bidding reached a sum in the neighborhood of $12 he began to cry "a half" and the auctioneer taking him at his word, raised the bid by 50 cents. "I'm bid 12-and-a-half, who'll gimme 13," says that gentleman. Of course I can get $14.00 for this beautiful piece, who'll gimme 13-and-a-half?"

"A half," grunts the man over in the corner, still hibernating and out of sight.

"I-got-a-half, 13-and-a-half, who'll gimme 14. Yes, I can surely get 14, who'll gimme the half?

Another grunt and "a half" from the corner.

"Yes, wise man," said the auctioneer, "he realizes the value of a piece of merchandise that is merchandise and merchandise of the finest quality. Now I-got-a-half, 14-and-a-half, and I know I can get 15, so who'll gimme 15-and-a-half?"

Grunt No. 4 came from the corner and the bid was likewise raised by 50 cents.

These tactics continued until the article in question had been raised to $24.50, but by this time the energetic bidder had lost all interest and when the toilet set had been knocked down and carried around to him by one of the clerks he was found to be fast asleep on the floor.

Walter Scott Talks of the U. of Pennsylvania Reunion

Attorney Walter Scott of this city, returned yesterday from Denver where he attended the annual dinner of the University of Pennsylvania alumni held at the University club Saturday evening. He reports the affair as an enjoyable one throughout, there being some exceptionally good speaking. Dr. Piersall and Dr. Conklin of the university were the principal speakers. Addresses were also made by President Slocum of Colorado college, and Chancellor Buchtel of Denver university. Dr. Wetherell of Denver presided as toastmaster. Among those who delivered brief speeches were Guy Leroy Stevick and President Nickerson of the association, both of Denver, and B. C. Allen and Walter Scott of this city. There are 50 alumni of U. of P. in the State at present and 29 were present at the dinner. Officers elected for next year were: Barton Lowe, Denver, president; Dr. Van Meter, Denver, vice president, and J. D. Hawkins of this city, secretary and treasurer.

California Tourists Are Making Stop-Over Visits to Colorado Springs

The different railroad offices and hotels report that the California business is beginning to liven up a great deal. A large number of local people are beginning to leave for the golden state to spend a few months during the winter, and a large number are passing through here every day from the east. The majority of these eastern people stop off in this city and spend a few days. A local hotel man, in speaking of the present influx of California people, said that there were more of the California tourists stopping off in this city this year than he had ever known of before. These people have been going through here for the last 30 days, in small crowds, but it has not been until just lately that the body of tourists has assumed anything like large proportions. A number of people bound for the Pacific coast stopped off here over Sunday, and the different tourist wagons report a comparatively big day.

"THE COMEDY OF ERRORS"

Stuart Robson and company played "The Comedy of Errors" to a large audience at the Opera house last night, and gave a fair presentation of the piece. Robson is—well, just Robson. But it seems as if he should stick to his "Henrietta," now that he is the whole thing on the stage, and let us see his inimitable "Bertie" and enjoy that droll character as we used to enjoy it in the old days. Robson can look the character of "Bertie" and make one smile, but his "Dromio" is not as satisfactory. There were some excellent scenic effects, and Mr. Holt was a good "Antipholus of Syracuse." Miss Barry did some good work as "Adriana," Miss Mayo was fairly satisfactory as "Luciana" and Miss Thompson certainly looked her rather disagreeable part.

The orchestra made it hard to understand what was being said upon the stage, and if Mr. Robson will cut out the musical part of the thing and let the orchestra do its part between the acts only, he will greatly improve the production and eliminate the country dance aspect that is given to it by most of the music rendered while the people on the stage are trying to make themselves heard. That "low music" business cheapens the production very materially. Those who went to the play last night are probably not sorry—for old times' sake; and those who did not go have no occasion to upbraid themselves.

SPEAR ARRESTED ON A SERIOUS CHARGE

Harry Spear, who works for Cochran and Massey, was arrested yesterday afternoon by the sheriff's office on a warrant issued from Justice McClelland's court. He is charged with complicity in a deal in which one John Smith, who is also wanted by the court, sold some mortgaged cattle. Spear was allowed to go free last night on personal assurance of several other parties that he would appear in court this morning and give bond. Smith, it appears, has left the state.

George Brain, of 113 North Spruce street, was arrested yesterday by Constable Radcliffe, on a charge of beating his wife. It appears that Brain and his wife had a lively set-to yesterday morning and later Mrs. Brain preferred charges against him. He will have a hearing this morning. He was released yesterday on his own recognizance.

Some People Can't Eat Bread.

Bread is reputed to be the "staff of life." Yet there are some people who never eat bread.

We allude to this because of a curious parallel fact in medicine. We recommend Vinol and sell it on a guarantee of money back if it does not benefit the user. We don't expect Vinol to help everybody. Yet, strange to say, out of every one hundred bottles sold, less than two per cent. proved unsatisfactory. In other words, ninety-eight out of every hundred found Vinol of value many of them great value.

We want to say that if you are run-down, weak, too thin, ailing, with bad stomach, poor appetite, cough, nervousness, that we think Vinol will help you.

TWO MORE BOYS

FROM THIS CITY JOIN UNCLE SAM'S NAVY AS APPRENTICES.

Lon Bainter and Ola Butler Are the Latest Additions to the Local Colony at Goat Island.

Two more Colorado Springs boys have gone to join the already good-sized local band of naval apprentices at Goat Island, Cal. Lon Bainter and Ola Butler are the latest young Americans to join the Springs colony. Bainter is the son of G. W. Bainter of 215 South Third street, and Butler is the son of H. L. Butler of 808 South Sawatch street. Bainter is 19 years old and Butler is 18.

The two young men went to Pueblo Saturday and successfully passed the necessary examination given by the recruiting officers and left yesterday for Las Vegas, N. M., where they will join the latest squad to the coast.

The enlistment of Bainter and Butler brings the number of Springs boys at Goat Island up to six and there will at least be enough of them together to keep them from getting homesick.

GRANT PAULEY HURRIES TO MOTHER'S BEDSIDE

Grant Pauley, city passenger agent of the Colorado Midland is expected home this morning to watch at the bedside of his mother, Mrs. M. A. Pauley, who lies very ill at her home, 428 North Nevada.

Grant Pauley has been absent from the city about a week on a short visit to friends in Chicago, Indianapolis and Louisville, but he wired yesterday that he would be in the city this morning.

Mrs. Pauley is suffering with a stroke of paralysis. She was reported to be slightly better last night but she is still in a very bad condition.

COLLEGE VACATION TIME NEAR AT HAND

Just 10 days from today, the 19th of the month, the holiday vacation will begin at Colorado college and the students of the institution are already making their plans to leave the city and spend Christmas and New Year with "the folks at home." The railroads have all announced special holiday rates to go into effect on the 24th of the month for the benefit of students and teachers wishing to leave the city. A rate of one fare for the round trip has been made for all state points.

However, for the benefit of those who wish to leave the city earlier than the 24th, a special arrangement will be made at some of the local railroad offices and students and teachers will be given an opportunity to spend nearly their entire vacation with their relatives. The holiday vacation will end on the the 8th of January.

The vacation at the High school will begin on the 24th of December and last until the 5th of January.

... Law Arguing ... Judges ...

Yesterday was motion day in the district court. Judge Cunningham was on the bench in both divisions at different times and disposed of numerous motions, most of which were of little or no public interest.

The matter of the writ of certiorari asked for in the case of the Stratton estate to set aside the new administrators was postponed until tomorrow.

In the case of Crowley vs. Shepherd, involving the ownership of a horse, a motion for a new trial was denied and notice was given that an appeal would be taken to the court of appeals.

In the criminal division Judge Cunningham overruled a motion to quash the information against G. H. Parker. Parker is charged with offering rebates on Mutual Life Insurance policies to induce people to take out policies. The motion to quash was made on the grounds that the law applies only to life insurance agents and in so discriminating the law should be termed "class legislation" but the court held otherwise.

Judge Cunningham yesterday evening listened to argument in the case of Johnson vs. Smith, brought to set aside a deed on the grounds that the defendant was not in his right mind when the deed was executed. Arguments will continue in this case this morning.

... Concert ... High School ... This ...

On Wednesday evening, December 17, the High school chorus which has been working under the direction of Prof. Albert C. Pearson will give a concert at the High school auditorium. Prof. Pearson has devoted a great deal of time and energy to the training of the High school choruses, and the remarkable success which he has met in this line is evidenced by the enthusiastic reception on the part of the public of the programs which he has from time to time prepared. To one who has followed the work it is evident that each new chorus is greatly superior to its predecessor. Too much cannot be said in praise of the work Mr. Pearson has done which is thoroughly appreciated by the public.

The chorus will have the assistance in its program of Mrs. C. E. Palmer, whose reputation as a singer is too well known to require comment. The proceeds derived from this entertainment will be used to pay the athletic debt of the High school which was contracted last year and which the school has not yet been able to pay. The entertainment will be excellent; the program will be published later.

... NORWAY

KAIA HAHLSSEN, DAUGHTER OF COUNT HAHLSSEN, COMES TO THIS CITY.

Speaks Several Languages Fluently and is Well Known as a Lecturer —Is Greatly Pleased With Colorado.

Among the distinguished persons who have recently come to Colorado Springs, to remain as long as fancy may dictate, is Miss Kaia Hahlssen, who arrived in the city Sunday evening. She is a member of the nobility of Norway, being the daughter of Count Hahlssen and sister of queen superior Amanda Hahlssen, who is the personal representative of the queen of Norway and Sweden, being constantly in the company of the queen and the special representative of her highness upon all occasions of state in which Norway figures as a state. Another queen superior, of equal rank, performs like service for the queen upon the occasion of functions in Sweden, this service being entirely one of honor.

Miss Hahlssen is a talented young woman. She speaks French and German fluently and, as she expresses it, she supposed she could talk English until she arrived in America. She has been a lecturer on temperance in her own country and Sweden for several years and has also taught Latin in the Orpa... clsk institute. She has also done considerable studying in medicine and surgery.

Miss Hahlssen is a winsome young woman, a decidedly good representative of the Norwegian type of beauty. She has visited New York, Chicago and Philadelphia since arriving in this country and expresses herself as more than pleased with America. She declares that Colorado Springs is the prettiest and most attractive place she has yet seen and that the climate here is as fine as she hopes to see. She thinks she will remain here for some time. She says she will remain until she has succeeded in getting her sister to come to America and see this country for herself, which the Lady Amanda has declared intention of doing.

WINTER NIGHT CLUB WILL MEET TONIGHT

The second meeting of the newly-organized Winter Night club will be held at the Antlers hotel this evening. A banquet will be a feature of the evening. Two papers will be read on the subject of "Compulsory Arbitration," one by Walter Scott and the other by Judge Hubbard. A general discussion of the subject will follow the reading of the papers. This club was organized among the citizens a few weeks ago and is already in a very flourishing condition.

BOVENZI PAUQUATE CAN NOW SPEAK ENGLISH

Bovenzi Pauquate, the Italian who was arrested for begging on the streets and who had a remarkable collection of bric-a-brac, etc., when he was searched, was yesterday placed on trial before Judge Hammond.

He professed to be unable to speak English when arrested, and kept up his bluff clear through the trial up to the point where sentence was pronounced upon him, but then he suddenly grasped the English vocabulary and made an eloquent appeal for mercy. When asked whether he was guilty or not guilty, Paquate replied, "Me no speaka Englis," but when the judge said "$20 and costs," the beggar from the sunny isle grasped the situation and threw discretion to the winds. He begged to be permitted to leave the city, but the judge decided that a little hard labor was what Bovenzi needed, and ordered him to the rock pile.

SUIT ON BLACKWOOD'S BOND IS DISMISSED

The Law and Order league of Colorado City has decided not to sue J. W. Blackwood, the Colorado City saloon keeper, on his bond, and yesterday Attorney Gardner, acting for the league, asked the district court to dismiss the case against Blackwood.

The league does not wish to persecute Blackwood, or any other saloon keeper, and as Blackwood has now done what all the others did, given a replevin bond to cover his fine, the case instituted against him as soon as he was released from jail has been dropped. No further action will be taken by the league against the saloon men so long as they respect the law.

IMPORTANT BRANCH OF ... ORGANIZED

IMPORTANT BRANCH OF NATIONAL GUARD TO BE STATIONED HERE.

Movement Is Already Under Way and a Dozen or More Additional Men Are Wanted—Dr. Hutchings Captain.

A movement has been on foot in this city for some time to organize a hospital corps in connection with the Colorado National guard, and it has progressed to the point where something like 12 young men have joined the company that is being organized.

The National guard is entitled to a hospital corps commensurate in numbers to the enrollment of the guard and so far the corps has not been enrolled to its limit. It has been decided to place another company of the corps in this city and Dr. R. K. Hutchings of this city has been placed at the head of the local company as an assistant surgeon of the guard with the rank of captain. It is purposed to recruit the local company to a membership of about 30 and about 15 more young men are needed to fill the complement. Those desirous of joining this branch of the guard are asked to consult Dr. Hutchings at an early date.

The company of hospital men will enjoy the same privileges as other members of the guard and will be taken with the other branches of the guard to the encampment of the National guard of all states to be held next summer. The corps will go on the invitation of the government and at the expense of the government. Those who enter this branch of the guard will be drilled regularly in hospital work and what military tactics are necessary and they will have a chance to see service whenever the guard is called out.

TWO DISABLED SAILORS ARE BOUND FOR HOME

Otis Jones and G. A. Bartlott, two United States sailors passed through this city last night over the Rock Island en route to their homes in the east from San Francisco. Jones had just been discharged after serving his three years enlistment. Bartlett has only served one year and a half, but was the victim of an accident a few weeks ago in the blowing up of a steam launch upon which he was working. This has incapacitated him in the eyes of the naval authorities and he is now being sent to his home in Massachusetts. Jones' home is in Indiana. Both have served on the battleship "Kentucky." Jones has also been aboard the U. S. S. "Solace."

Both are just out of the hospital.

Two severe cases of Ovarian Trouble and two terrible operations avoided. Mrs. Emmons and Mrs. Coleman each tell how they were saved by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I am so pleased with the results obtained from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I feel it a duty and a privilege to write you about it.

"I suffered for more than five years with ovarian troubles, causing an unpleasant discharge, a great weakness, and at times a faintness would come over me which no amount of medicine, diet, or exercise seemed to correct. Your Vegetable Compound found the weak spot, however, within a few weeks — and saved me from an operation — all my troubles had disappeared, and I found myself once more healthy and well. Words fail to describe the real, true, grateful feeling that is in my heart, and I want to tell every sick and suffering sister. Don't dally with medicines you know nothing about, but take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and take my word for it, you will be a different woman in a short time." — MRS. LAURA EMMONS, Walkerville, Ont.

Another Case of Ovarian Trouble Cured Without an Operation.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: — For several years I was troubled with ovarian trouble and a painful and inflamed condition, which kept me in bed part of the time. I did so dread a surgical operation.

"I tried different remedies hoping to get better, but nothing seemed to bring relief until a friend who had been cured of ovarian trouble, through the use of your compound, induced me to try it. I took it faithfully for three months, and at the end of that time was glad to find that I was a well woman. Health is nature's best gift to woman, and if you lose it and can have it restored through Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I feel that all suffering women should know of this." — MRS. LAURA BELLE COLEMAN, Commercial Hotel, Nashville, Tenn.

It is well to remember such letters as above when some druggist tries to get you to buy something which he says is "just as good." That is impossible, as no other medicine has such a record of cures as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; accept no other and you will be glad.

Don't hesitate to write to Mrs. Pinkham if there is anything about your sickness you do not understand. She will treat you with kindness and her advice is free. No woman ever regretted writing her and she has helped thousands. Address Lynn, Mass.

$5000 FORFEIT if we cannot forthwith produce the original letters and signatures of above testimonials, which will prove their absolute genuineness. Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

The School Art Contest.

A lively interest is being manifested in our art contest. Almost every school in the community is after the pictures and statuary amounting to $100.00 to be given away by us on January 31st, 1903.

We noticed quite a number of votes cast today for the Deaf and Blind school and the Loretta Academy, as well as some of the private schools.

Remember, our pictures and casts will be purchased expressly for this contest, and furnished at the regular prices less the usual school discounts, all of them being suitable subjects to decorate the hall of some school building.

Any school can win the contest by an organized effort on the part of the teachers, parents and children interested in their school.

Hundreds of votes are taken out of the store every day that can be had for the asking. We know of a prominent boarding house where several hundred votes may be had by the person asking for them first.

Remember—The next two weeks is the time in which the heavy buying will be done and many voting tickets issued—one vote for every 25-cent cash purchase.

[illegible]

The members of the Colorado college football team met yesterday afternoon and elected as captain of the team for the season of 1903, Lester Dale. Dale is a sophomore at the college and an old student and member of the football team of the Colorado Springs High school. There were three candidates for the vacancy caused by the graduation of Marshall Jonson this year. Reed, Dale and "Shorty" Randolph. Randolph, however, would not allow his name to be used after Dale announced his candidacy. The race between Dale and Reed was a close one, the final vote being 7 to 5.

Dale is popular with his fellow team mates and his playing of center on the team during the last two seasons demonstrates that he is in the game. The conferring of the captaincy of the team upon Dale is another honor for the High school as Jonson, this year's captain, is an old High school student and football player. The fact that Rush Sill, son of J. A. Sill, a former student of the local High school and member of the football team, was this year elected captain of the State School of Mines team, although only a sophomore, shows that the High school is a sure training ground for football players.

Marshall Jonson, whom Dale succeeds in the leadership of the Tigers, has been captain two seasons, and during that time has won the admiration of all those who play or take an interest in college football. Jonson has been unfortunate in not being able to lead the team to the championship either year that he has been their captain, but he has played the game all the way through and has been game to the finish. He has made one of the best captains that the Tigers ever had and all of them regret that he will have to leave the team this year. Jonson is a senior and graduates this coming June.

Dale was the heaviest man on the local team this year and one of the heaviest men playing on any college team in the state this season. He tips the beam usually at 196 pounds and forms a strong part of the college forwards. He will probably go back of the line next year or play a guard. His candidacy for captain came as a surprise to a great many of the students who did not know that Dale cared to have the place of captain.

The election of the captain for next year was to have been held this evening at the meeting of the Colorado college athletic board, which will be held in the apartments of Prof Ahlers of the college H. L. Kitely, a member of the team, left the city yesterday and the election was held yesterday on his account.

The association meeting will be held this evening and a manager will be elected to succeed Van Nostran who has been manager of both the football team and baseball teams for the past two years. Van Nostran will also graduate this year. Hunt and Gardner are understood to be candidates for the position. Manager Van Nostran will make his report for the season to the association tonight and other important business will be transacted. The proposition of the three ladies, Mrs. Cajori, Mrs. Ahlers and Mrs. Bryant to raise $1,000 by giving entertainments and holding rummage sales in order to put the college athletic association on a firm financial basis will be taken up.

[illegible] Wants Pay for Use of Field

The High school students are not through with football for this season yet, it seems. At noon intermission yesterday the boys of the Senior class came forth and announced through the medium of Prine pal Mason that they would challenge any eleven composed of members of the other classes to a game of football. The parties in charge got their heads together yesterday afternoon and it was decided to play the game Saturday afternoon on Washburn field. There were six members of the Senior class in the football team and squad this year and they have naturally got the impression that they can play the game better than the members of the other classes. The line-up for the Saturday game has not yet been prepared but will be announced before the game. Principal Mason and Professor Du Bach will probably act as the officials.

[illegible] Bowling Match

T. M. P. Taylor, of the Town and Gown bowling team, broke the state record for three games last night while bowling in the "three-man" tournament now in progress at the Antlers bowling alleys. Taylor in his three games made a total of 670 pins, a margin of 56 pins over the score made by E. C. Johnson of the Overland team of Denver, who broke the state record this fall while playing in a match game against the "Big Three" of Chicago. Johnson's score was 614, but the bowling of Taylor last evening relegated it to a back seat among the cane brake.

The bowling in the tournament last night was above the average and some very good games were witnessed by the crowd of spectators. As a result of the games, the Town and Gown team goes to the top of the list and the Pike's Peak team which led last week, drops down to second place.

The Pike's Peak team made the high score for a single game, bowling 589, an average of 196 2-3 for each man for the game. The Elks team goes to third place as a result of last night's games and the Antlers aggregation takes new No 4.

Two more series of games will be played in the tournament, one next Monday evening and the last a week from next Monday evening.

The contestants, the members of the "Three-Man" teams, are contesting for prizes put up by the management of the alleys for the best total scores made by them in the series of 12 games that are to be played. Considerable interest is being manifested among the local bowlers over the result of the tournament. Last night's scores follow:

FERRIS SCHOOL

TRUSTEES AND TEACHERS HELD SOCIAL AND BUSINESS SESSION.

Reports Were Made and Plans Were Discussed—Cookery and Manual Training Departments Inspected.

The regular quarterly meeting of the Ferris School association was held at the school building last night, with the president, Mrs. F. B. Stewart, in the chair. The school is unique in its form of control and the quarterly meetings are occasions upon which trustees and teachers meet in social as well as business relations.

The report of the head master, William E Stark, showed satisfactory increase in interest and attendance, and set forth the plans and aims for the current year. Others of the teachers reported upon work in their respective departments. Parents and members of the board of trustees participated in the ensuing discussions.

During the social hour which followed, the interest of the guests was centered upon an inspection of the new equipment for cookery and manual training. The school has this year erected a workshop and fitted it with individual benches and tools, which has greatly increased its efficiency in this important line of school work.

SCHOOL BOARD—The board of education will hold its regular monthly meeting at the High school building this evening. Nothing of any great importance is scheduled to come up, the business being mainly confined to the passing of monthly bills and other routine matters.

ABE ATTEL WINS ON POINTS FROM BUDDY RYAN

By Associated Press.

Chicago, Dec. 8.—Abe Attel, the California featherweight out-pointed Buddy Ryan of Chicago in a six-round contest here tonight. Attel made a running fight of it. In the third round, however, Ryan, after a hard chase, cornered Attel and knocked him down with a left hook to the jaw. Attel took a count of nine and got to his feet without showing any ill effects from the blow. Attel used a straight left hand jab that Ryan was unable to evade and the Californian had quite the better of each round with the exception of the third.

MILLIONAIRE FACES ARE ON CARDBOARD

The pictures of the Millionaires ordered some time ago by Secretary Masterson of the local club, were finished yesterday and are being placed in a few of the clubs and cigar stores about the city. The pictures were made by Bingham and Wood and are finished in an attractive style. The members of the team are grouped about Magnate Burns and Captain Everitt, each picture being cut in an oval style. The group is mounted on a large gray card, and around the group is fancy scroll work done in black by hand, with the name of the team at the bottom. These photos will undoubtedly be highly prized by all who receive them. In view of the fact that several changes are to be made in the personnel of the team, they will serve as a souvenir of the team for the first year that Colorado Springs enjoyed real Western league baseball. The following Rich Men have their "phizomig" countenances on the card: Magnate Burns, Captain Everitt, Eastwald, Gaston, Fleming, Jones, Newmoyer, Granville, McNeeley, Hemphill, Dixon, Hollingsworth, Lynch and Congalton.

New York, Dec. 8.—Baseball men representing all the cities in the National league except Philadelphia, are in this city for the meeting of the league which will begin tomorrow, and Messrs. John I. Rogers and A. Reach are expected from the Quaker city in the morning. Three questions of importance will come before the league, first the schedule for the coming season; second, the advisability of continuing the executive committee or electing a president, and third, the election of a secretary to succeed N. E. Young.

James A. Hart of Chicago, Barney Dreyfus of Pittsburg, and Charles H. Ebbetts of Brooklyn, had the schedule under advisement all day.

Sporing Notes

The Pueblo automobilists have caught the racing craze. An exciting race was held at the State Fair grounds Saturday which resulted in a draw on account of a misunderstanding of the contestants. The distance set was five miles and the best time was 9:33¾, an average of 1:54½ for the mile.

The arrangements for the Terry McGovern-"Young" Corbett fight are still hanging fire. Clubs in Baltimore and Detroit are now bidding for the fight but it is very probable that after getting a little more advertising out of the deal, Harris and Considine will do what they have been intending to do all the time, and hold the fight at Louisville.

Every Tuesday we give 2 pieces of a fine China Cut with $2.00 purchase or more.

SUPREME COURT JUSTICE DEAD

By Associated Press.

Portland, Me., Dec. 8—In the parish house of the Unitarian church tonight lies the body of Thomas Brackett Reed, for 32 years one of Maine's representatives at Washington and for six years speaker of the national house of representatives.

Tomorrow forenoon his friends, who include every man, woman and child in the city of Portland, will be permitted to gaze for the last time upon the face which to them was ever full of life and jollity and in the afternoon in the main body of the church will assemble distinguished statesmen from Washington, prominent men from New York, governors from the New England states and the most noted residents of the Pine Tree state to honor his memory. There will be read a few passages from the bible, a brief prayer will be said and a short eulogy delivered by the pastor, Rev. John Carroll Perkins. After the benediction is pronounced the body will be placed in the tomb at Evergreen cemetery.

The funeral party arrived here from Washington, in a special train shortly after noon today. It consisted of the widow, the daughter, Miss Catherine Reed, Colonel Augustus G Payne of New York, C. D. Barrows and his sister, Miss Barrows Congressman Amos L. Allen, Mr. Reed's immediate successor in the First district, Asher C. Hinds, his private secretary and State Senator Mitchell of New York county. A committee of arrangements was in waiting. Mrs. Reed and her daughter were escorted to the hotel, while the body which rested in a plain black casket was borne to a hearse and conveyed to the first parish house. The committee decided that in view of the large number of delegations and distinguished personages who had signified their intention of being present, it would be impossible to throw open the church generally. Mrs. Reed's permission was then obtained to have the body lie in state and tomorrow between 11 and 1 o'clock the public will be admitted to the church. After that the edifice will be closed to all except those holding tickets.

The pallbearers have been selected from the Cumberland bar and the Cumberland club.

The main body of the church will be reserved for Governor Hill, staff and council, Governor Crane of Massachusetts, Collector H. Lyman of Boston, members of the Home Market club, the Cumberland bar, Cumberland club, Loyal Legion Grand Army and members of the city government. None of the immediate family will be in the body of the church, but will occupy seats in the parish house, the broad doors of which lead directly into the large edifice.

At 10 o'clock tomorrow there will be a meeting at Greenleaf Law library of the Cumberland bar, at which fitting resolutions will be adopted. During the funeral services the city bells will toll 63 strokes and all public business will be suspended.
